17TH YEAR. NO. 313.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1901.

TWO CENTS

GOOD ROUND SUM OFFERED FOR HOTEL SITE IN CITY

John Kernohan, a Prominent Pittsburgher, Trying to Make a Deal.

AN OFFER OF $40,000 MADE for the Isaac Knowles Property, at Washington and Fifth Streets.

OTHER SITES CONTEMPLATED

among them being the Syndicate Block and the Watson and Walsh Properties — A Strictly Modern Hotel Sure to Be Built.

John Kernohan, of Pittsburgh, erstwhile proprietor of the St. James hotel of that city, is in East Liverpool. His mission here, it is believed, will terminate in an important deal by which one of the finest hotels in this section of the country will be erected.

Mr. Kernohan, through a prominent real estate dealer, made an offer of $40,000 today for the Isaac Knowles property, at the corner of Sixth and Washington, though the position has not as yet been made known to the owner of the property.

In addition to this Mr. Kernohan is negotiating for the purchase of the Syndicate block on Sixth street, though it is not known that he has as yet made an offer for the same.

The Watson and Walsh properties on Sixth street are also being considered and are looked upon with favor. The real estate dealer interested in Mr. Kernohan's scheme holds options on the two properties last named, but it is not probable they will be purchased if either of the others can be secured. The Knowles property is the most favored, but it is said its owner will probably demand a much higher price than that offered.

It is the intention of the Pittsburgher to erect a strictly modern hotel. His plans as already made out will necessitate the purchase of considerable acreage, as in addition to the land proper he proposes building two more large store rooms. He has some time been figuring on his scheme, and it comes from reliable authority that before Mr. Kernohan leaves the city he will possibly have closed a deal for a hotel.

Every effort has been made to keep the matter quiet, but the details as yet given were learned by a reporter this afternoon.

COAL LAND SOLD

A big deal has been consummated which Rev. J. H. Norris, of Pittsburgh, becomes the possessor of 1,000 acres of land in Yellow Creek township. In some instances he bought the coal under the farms and in other cases he bought the farm surface and all.

The purchases include the farms of M. Morris, the Morris farm, the son farm and the farm formerly owned by William Anderson farm, lately owned by William Dennis.

The land extends from the road near the school house down to the village. It is said that operations will be put under headway in the very near future for the mining of the coal in the territory bought.

became frightened at the Beaver Falls drum corps and ran off. It dashed out the street and turned down Market street. It was captured a short distance from the corner and turned over to Mayor Davidson, who returned it to the same place.

The mayor sat in the buggy for some time, awaiting the arrival of the owner, but as he did not come he tied the horse up.

COLD WATER TICKET

PROHIBITIONISTS SELECT CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY PLACES.

Adopt a Platform Giving Both Old Parties And the Rum Power a Drubbing.

The Prohibition party held its county convention in the new Potters National bank building last night. The convention was held for the purpose of nominating a ticket and reorganizing the county executive committee which will remain the same.

Stratton, Salem; auditor, Jerry Dennis, East Liverpool; treasurer, J. R. Stoakes, Wellsville; commissioner, Sanford E. Fisher, East Liverpool; infirmary director, C. V. Wilcoxen, Madison township.

The platform adopted attacks "the legalized liquor traffic" as a public nuisance, imperiling the safety and welfare of society and pledges an unrelenting war against it; declares the Prohibition party a necessity; alleges that Republicans and Democrats in Ohio show "complete subserviency to the slum vote;" that the ballot is misused in voting for parties that sustain the policy of license; favors good roads, retrenchment and reform and closes with "an appeal to patriots" to unite with the Prohibition party.

BUILDING LEASED

OLD POTTERS' BANK IN POTTERIES CO.'S HANDS.

The Deal Consummated And Developments Are Expected to Follow.

It was learned today that the old Potters' National bank building had been leased to the East Liverpool Potteries company with the privilege of purchase.

The plan of the lessees could not be learned, but it is thought there is some significance connected with the deal which will develop within a few days.

NEW PARSONAGE

To Be Erected By the Congregation of the Christian Church.

Subscription papers are being circulated for the purpose of erecting a new parsonage for the pastor of the Christian church. The building will be erected by the congregation without the assistance of outside parties, and will be located on the lot formerly owned by the church on Elm street.

The move is meeting with success and the erection of the building will be commenced at no very distant date.

FAILED UTTERLY OF ITS PURPOSE

Board of Trade Meeting Last Night Didn't Boom Any Propositions.

ATTENDANCE TOO SMALL

And Nothing of an Official Nature Was Done—Brush Factory And Glass House Deals Talked Over Before Adjournment.

There are times, it is said, when patience ceases to be a virtue, but to calculate the limitation of endurance on the part of the gentlemen who have been struggling for the past several weeks in an effort to build up a board of trade for East Liverpool would indeed be a difficult undertaking.

For the second time since the attempted reorganization of the board of trade it has been necessary to postpone meetings because of a poor attendance. This was the situation last night, notwithstanding the officers and other leading members of that body made every possible endeavor to arouse the interest of the citizens and induce their co-operation in the work of encouraging the industrial growth of the city simply by asking that they be present at the meeting.

How well they succeeded is shown by the actual attendance. Although confined to his home with illness nearly all of the week, President Croxall was there on time. The others were Messrs. Louis Steinfield, John Moore, Joseph Betz, C. T. Hard, Walter Supplee, David McLane and Chief Thompson, together with two reporters. For more than an hour they waited for others to come, but were disappointed.

President Croxall stated at the time of calling the meeting that unless the attendance was better than at the previous one the board of trade would then and there become a matter of history and that he would have no further connection with it. But in spite of the disheartening incident to the necessity of calling off the meeting of last night, he consented to make one more attempt to make a success of his undertaking, and will call another meeting some time later.

Those who were at the city hall last night heard what Mr. Moore had to say of the Pittsburg brush factory, he being one of the committee that made an investigation of the concern. He stated his belief that the factory would be a good thing for East Liverpool, but the matter was not discussed in detail. The glass house proposition was also talked over, and it was decided to keep on urging the project in the hope that the necessary stock will be subscribed.

Chief Thompson stated that the molds which have been so much talked about were leased to other companies, but that they could be recovered at any time. Their value is placed at about $2,500, and several of them are of a pattern that have but few duplicates.

It is probable that a change will be made in the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions for the glass factory. It is the belief of those most interested in the deal that the committee should be entirely composed of merchants who have stock themselves. The claim is made that their influence would be greater than that of others who have nothing at stake.

Moved to Beaver Falls—The household goods of Charles McMasters were received at the freight station from Beaver Falls.

LOCAL OIL COMPANY READY FOR BUSINESS

The new oil company, stock for which has all been subscribed, held a meeting last evening, and the organization of the company perfected.

M. E. Miskall was made president, E. W. Hill secretary and J. C. Walsh treasurer. The other incorporators are J. J. Rose, E. Kelsey Bennett, Dr. W. N. Barley, Harvey Wallace and Mr. Brooks, of Sistersville. The latter is the practical man, and will have charge of the prospecting, which will be commenced at once.

It is the intention of the company to begin the work at once—even before the charter arrives—application for which was made this morning.

The territory which the new company controls comprises 500 acres and John March, a prominent Pittsburgher, trying to make a deal.

Stuart—Anna Haley, Alice McCullough, Florence Garret, Maude Barlow.

M. Wade had a singularly fine display, the young lady representing his house wearing more than $2,000 worth of jewelry. From the bottom of the skirt midway to the waist hung 150 watch chains of various designs. To the belt were hung 35 or 40 watches. Hundreds of emblem pins formed a word on the back of the skirt. The lady's bare arms were encased in bracelets and ornaments. The bust was adorned with diamonds, brooches and gems and the hands with sparkling rings. On the head rested a brilliant crown, completing a costume of extraordinary magnificence and beauty.

Other displays were appropriate and attractive.

The affair was in charge of J. Henry Gerls, of Chicago, to whom is due great credit for the success of the entertainment.

Their appearance on the streets was somewhat of a surprise to East Liverpool people.

Most of the citizens had a dim conception of that organization and the music was of a high order. At the Diamond the drum major gave a high-class exhibition of baton juggling, which was witnessed by a large crowd.

M. E. Miskall was made president, E. W. Hill secretary and J. C. Walsh treasurer. The other incorporators are J. J. Rose, E. Kelsey Bennett, Dr. W. N. It is the intention of the company to begin the work at once—even before the charter arrives—application for which was made this morning.

The territory which the new company controls comprises 500 acres and is situated in Morgan county, O. The option has been held for some time and only awaited the capital to develop.

Morgan county lies adjacent to the oil fields of Washington county, where extensive oil operations have been in progress for the past 40 years and of late have increased in importance. In the Chester Hill field, Morgan county, much excitement resulted from oil strikes a few years ago and the field is now the scene of active and profitable operations.

There is much territory in Morgan county where the experts claim the indications for oil are most promising, but which have never yet been given a thorough test.

Will Be Committed to Massillon Asylum—Insane Murderer in Sheriff's Custody—W. C. Supplee Loses His Suit—Minor Matters in Court.

Lisbon, June 15.—(Special)—Mrs. Susan Long, aged 67, of this city, was adjudged insane and will be admitted to the Massillon hospital.

Common pleas court adjourned yesterday until Monday next at 1 o'clock.

Sheriff Noragon returned today from Columbus, having in charge Peter Politzga, who has been confined in the insane ward of the penitentiary for some time. Politzga was sent to the penitentiary about 12 years ago for the murder of Joseph Weismoser, of East Palestine, and is completely broken down physically and mentally.

Judge Boone will hold an inquest as to his sanity soon.

In the case of Nora O. Dubbs against O. H. Bates, executor of C. K. Betz, a motion for a new trial was overruled.

In the case of E. Z. Zimmerman vs. Hamilton Howell, a motion for a new trial was overruled.

The suit of Hannah March vs. George March, which ended yesterday in a verdict for the plaintiff for $480.75, the amount claimed, with interest, arose over a pot of gold.

Most of the citizens had a dim conception of that organization and the music was of a high order. At the Diamond the drum major gave a high-class exhibition of baton juggling, which was witnessed by a large crowd.

March says that he agreed to carry out the provisions of the will and would have done so. The trouble arose when one of the sisters found $615 in gold coin on the farm after their father's death. March immediately claimed it as his property as coming under the head of goods and chattels on the farm. The sisters disputed this and proceeded to divide the gold into five equal parts, taking $123 each.

When March found that they wouldn't return it to him he proceeded to pay to them their legacies less the amount each received in gold. When he tendered them the amount they each refused it, and he wanted the court to declare the amount they received as an offset against their share of the estate. The verdict was against this contention.

In the case of John W. Yates vs. Jane Hoopes, both of Butler township, the verdict was for the defendant. The amount involved was $54.

The case of W. C. Supplee, who brought an action to recover $190 as back salary as policeman in Lisbon, was decided yesterday. Judge Ambler ruled in favor of the city, holding that as Supplee had given bond only as marshal, he could not recover for serving as policeman.

Peter E. McDevitt and Margaret Wentwich, of East Liverpool, filed an action in common pleas court today against Charles A. Tucker and wife. The plaintiffs claim that the Tuckers entered into an agreement some years ago with Edward and Margaret A. McDevitt to purchase a part of lot No. 1 in John S. Blakely's addition to East Liverpool for $2,200. They further claim that they are the only surviving heirs of Edward and Margaret A. McDevitt and ask a judgment for $1,569, the amount alleged to be due on the contract of sale.

In the divorce suit of J. S. Hughes against Kittie B. Hughes, both of Salem, Judge Hole ordered the plaintiff to pay his wife temporary alimony of $40 before June 24 and $4 per week thereafter until otherwise ordered by the court.

One of the most pleasant birthday surprise parties of the season was held at the home of Mrs. John Densmore on St. George street last evening. The occasion was Mrs. Densmore's birthday and her lady friends had arranged every detail so that the affair was a complete success.

Mrs. Densmore had gone to the city proper and when she returned about 8 o'clock was greeted by a parlor full of friends.

About 50 guests were present and the evening was most pleasantly passed. A delicious luncheon was served.

TAGALO WOMEN

HE comeliest women of Luzon and the adjacent islands are the Tagalos. That perhaps is not saying much; still it is something. The aborigines and the other wild peoples of the Philippines are among the most unpleasing of mankind in appearance.

The women of the Tagalo race, besides being the best looking, are also the most highly civilized and the least oppressed of their sex among the native races of the Philippines. They have seen more white women than have their native sisters of other races and have profited by it.

Tagalo women seldom go out to domestic service except as nurses. Men are the house servants. But women and girls work in the tobacco factories. Nearly all the cigar and cigarette making is done by them. In some cases the Tagalo man stays at home and minds the children and does the house work while his wife earns the living in the factory. For some reason women seem to be preferred to men in tobacco manufacture.

In one industrial art Tagalo women are really gifted, and that is embroidery. I never noticed that they could do anything else particularly well, but in art work with the needle they are equal to Japanese. You may, for instance, direct a Tagalo woman to make a monogram or a set of initial letters. You give her the pattern. She looks at it, sets it before her and begins. Without a measurement, without putting in a stitch to guide her, without a touch of a stamp, she merely follows the pattern with her eye while she works, and under her hand meantime forms itself the exact reproduction of the model.

The bowling contest between the Crescents and the Imperials last night resulted in victory for the former. The score was, Crescents, 593, 550, 654; Imperials, 554, 541, 497; total, 1,797 to 1,592.

This marks the end of the series. The standing of the teams is as follows: Strikers, Pointers, Eclipse, Crescents, Ramblers, Imperials.

Tears

Many a woman has periodic crying spells. She meets her husband with eyes red and swollen and he cries out: "What has happened?" "Nothing," his wife replies. "I don't know what is the matter with me, but I just had to have a good cry." Men don't have crying spells. It would seem therefore that an affection confined to women must have its cause in the womanly nature. There is no doubt that a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organs, is in general responsible for feminine nervousness and hysteria.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes women happy by making them healthy. There are no more crying spells. "Favorite Prescription" cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

There is no medicine "just as good."

Accept no substitutes.

"Just as good," writes Mrs. Mary A. Sasser, of High Lamar Co., Texas. "I suffered from falling of the womb, also ulceration of the womb. After using three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription,' four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' I found relief. I am able to do my work with ease. I recommend your wonderful medicine to all my friends, for I truly believe it saved my life."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Cloth binding 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

RINGLING BROS.' CIRCUS.

This Famous Big Show to Shortly Exhibit in This City.

Arrangements are now under way for the appearance of Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows in East Liverpool. Friday, July 5, has been definitely decided upon as the date of the big show. Ringling Brothers need no introduction to the people of this community. The reputation of these Napoleonic showmen and the magnitude of their great exhibition are familiar to the public, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Among the great offerings this year are 60 aerialists, 60 acrobats, 30 riders, 10 clowns and a vast number of other clever performers.

The trained animal features are numerous and of a most sensational character. There are 30 elephants and 20 of these appear together in one ring, at one time, under the direction of their trainer. O'Brien's 61-horse act is the finest display of trained equine intelligence ever seen in the United States. The menagerie has been greatly augmented for the present season, and contains hundreds of rare wild animals never before placed on exhibition, and what is believed to be the only giraffe now in existence. Circus day will be inaugurated with Ringling Bros.' new big street parade, a magnificent processional display that dwarfs all previous efforts in the line of spectacular pageantry. It is over a mile in length, and gorgeous beyond the power of adequate description.

Only 12 lots left out of the 72 advertised last week at Maplewood on the new car line. All we have left are choice front lots fronting on the car line, and are valuable, but we are going to close them out at a low figure.

STRUCK HIS HEAD ON A STONE WHILE DIVING.

John Patterson Had a Close Call While Swimming in the River.

John Patterson came near being drowned while swimming in the river near the old Hague place last evening. He dived off a springing board, striking his head on a stone at the bottom. When he came up he was badly strangled and was assisted to the shore by his companions.

He did not strike the stone hard enough to inflict any serious injury, and was all right as soon as he got over his struggle.

Mrs. Densmore had gone to the city proper and when she returned about 8 o'clock was greeted by a parlor full of friends.

About 50 guests were present and the evening was most pleasantly passed. A delicious luncheon was served.

Mrs. Densmore received many dainty presents.

For some reason women seem to be preferred to men in tobacco manufacture.

In one industrial art Tagalo women are really gifted, and that is embroidery. You may, for instance, direct a Tagalo woman to make a monogram or a set of initial letters. You give her the pattern. She looks at it, sets it before her and begins. Without a measurement, without putting in a stitch to guide her, without a touch of a stamp, she merely follows the pattern with her eye while she works, and under her hand meantime forms itself the exact reproduction of the model.

MANILA FLOWER GIRL.

You gave her—forms itself, too, with astonishing rapidity. These women learned embroidery from the Spanish nuns sent centuries ago to teach and civilize them.

The universal costume of the Tagalo women you see in the picture, but not once in a thousand cases would you see a girl so pretty as the one here shown. The skirt of the dress is scarlet in most cases, the overapron is black, and the shirt waist, without neck or belt, is made of the beautiful pina, or pine-apple cloth, usually embroidered. It is naturally of a light grayish brown color.

It is the rarest to find a Tagalo woman of the pure native blood. The one in the illustration has a strong infusion of Spanish in her veins. Tagalos are nearly all of mixed Spanish descent, and where there is no Spanish ancestry in nine cases out of ten there will be a Chinese father or grandfather or yellow progenitor still further back. The Tagalos are found chiefly in the north Philippines, and their women were wives to the Chinese even before Magellan discovered the islands. For many centuries Chinamen have been crossing the sea from their native land to the Philippines, and in all that time they have been taking Tagalo wives. The Tagalo women rather like Chinese husbands because they are industrious and make a living for their families.

Among the equal rights which Tagalo women claim is that of smoking cigars and cigarettes, which they do freely in the most public places on the highways, in the street cars—everywhere, perhaps, but in church. They also claim the right to chew betel nut, which stains their teeth, tongue and lips a frightful blood red, making them look to a white person anything but kissable. But a Tagalo man does not mind a little thing like that. The whole race of them, men and women both, with few exceptions, have very bad teeth. The women have long, thick, pretty black hair, which they grease to death, largely with cocanut oil. In consequence of this little cus tom they do not smell good. Besides nursing in white families and working in tobacco factories, Tagalo women earn money by selling fruit and flowers on the streets. They sew under the direction of Spanish dressmakers, too, squatting upon the floor and turning by hand ridiculous little toy sewing machines. They will not use those which they must sit upon a chair in front of and work with their feet.

BIG HOTEL BURNED.

Over 200 Guests Escaped, Most
Of Them In Night
Attire.

DEPARTED IN VARIECATED CARB.

Some Women Dressed In Combinations of Men and Women's Clothes.
Employees Escaped—Electric Lights Went Out—Guests In Darkness.

West Baden, Ind., June 15.—Of the 268 persons who were in the Mineral Springs hotel fire here, it is now believed that every one escaped with his life. Mr. Sinclair, the proprietor, has been busy checking off the names, but the accuracy of his work is handicapped by the fact that all the records and papers, including the hotel register, were lost. Many of the guests left for their homes in various parts of the country, the most prominent going to Chicago, Louisville and Indianapolis. The rest are at French Lick. The loss on the hotel building is estimated at $250,000, with insurance aggregating $110,000. In addition to this the loss in diamonds, jewelry and clothing belonging to the guests, it is estimated, will reach $50,000.

Watchman Failed to Quench Fire.

The conflagration had its origin in the kitchen. The night watchman attempted to extinguish the blaze with hand grenades, but seeing his attempts were in vain he rushed to the office, notifying the night clerk, and together they ran rapidly through the halls, bursting open doors and yelling "fire." It was but a few moments after the discovery of the fire that the electric light circuit was burned out, and the panicstricken guests groped around in their rooms for wearing apparel and other personal property.

Out of the 268 guests who had registered at the hotel the evening before, only 12 succeeded in escaping from the burning building with all their personal property.

Miss Leslie, the theatrical critic of a Chicago paper, who has been at the hotel with her niece for the past about two weeks, escaped with nothing but her night robes. Miss Leslie's traveling wardrobe consisted of a night robe, a gentleman's shirt, which she purchased at the village store, and her bath robe. Her little niece was provided for by an old colored woman, who furnished her with one of her little daughter's dresses.

Miss Sinclair, daughter of one of the proprietors of the hotel, had a very narrow escape, losing all her wearing apparel, diamonds and other personal property.

Fifty or sixty female employees of the hotel, who were quartered in the rooms on the upper floor of the new bath house, which has just been completed at a cost of $70,000, escaped unharmed. This building, with the hotel, was also destroyed.

In about half an hour after the fire was discovered much of the building was ablaze. The building was provided with fire escapes, and on the front of the building, extending from the ground to the roof, was an escape built in a spiral fashion. It was through this that many of the guests got out.

Many Had Narrow Escapes.

Colonel Howard, general agent of a life insurance company of New York, barely escaped in his night clothing. Many others had narrow escapes.

The massive fireproof safe in the office contained $10,000 in cash, which the guests had deposited for safe keeping. The safe is in the cellar, completely covered with the burning debris, and it will not be known for several days whether the valuables therein are safe.

The officials of the Monon railroad had been notified of their destitute condition, their tickets and money having been destroyed, and it was but a short time before a message was received from the general superintendent inviting all to proceed to Chicago or any other point of their line free of charge.

After the fire women, dressed in their night robes, men's overcoats, hats and shoes, mingled in the crowd, congratulating each other on their narrow escapes.

The guests, or those of them who saved enough money, soon cleaned out the stock of the little country store. Women purchased men's sweaters, shirts and other articles of clothing.

S. Woodle, Ex-Congressman J. D. Hicks spoke.

The solemn rites of the Masonic order in laying the corner stone and placing the contents of the receptacle were carefully performed. General George E. Warner, of Philadelphia, the grand master, and his staff officiated. At the conclusion of the Masonic ceremonies Rev. Dr. D. S. Monroe of Shamokin, the secretary of the Central Pennsylvania conference, delivered the oration of the occasion.

COUNTY AND NEIGHBORHOOD

Steubenville has $1,133 to pay in smallpox bills, and they are still coming in.

Ida, the 10-year-old daughter of Thomas Campbell, of McKeesport, Pa., weighs 160 pounds.

Miss Helen Lease, of Salem, a student at Swarthmore college, near Philadelphia, Pa., won a $200 scholarship.

Miss Mary Altaffer, daughter of John Altaffer, was married at Alliance to Clarence W. Bayne, of Silver City, N. Mexico.

Owing to the miners' strike coal shipments on the Pittsburgh, Lisbon and Western railroad have decreased 90 per cent.

Price Cope, of Rogers, and Miss Mayme McQueen, of Wellsville, are engaged to teach the school at Franklin Square next winter.

Henry Louk and Miss Annie Manley were married under an apple tree near Beverly, W. Va., by the Rev. Edward Kindewin, in the presence of a large assemblage.

Dr. Daniel Boardman Purinton, now president of Dennison university, at Granville, O., was elected president of the West Virginia university by a unanimous vote of the board of regents.

The citizens of Belmont county, O., have organized to celebrate the centennial of the county in September. It will likely be held at Shadyside, the first county seat.

The Ohio River railroad station at Sistersville was robbed by masked men who compelled C. M. Anderson, the night operator, to open the safe. The robbers got only $27.

Charles A. Dyer, a machinist, of Cadiz, was found aimlessly walking the streets of Akron, having entirely lost his memory. He wept like a child and asked for his wife. He did not know his name or residence.

FEMALE FIGHTERS

Entertain the Residents of Jethro By Engaging in Hair Pulling.

Two young women of Jethro entertained the inhabitants of that quaint old village last evening by a hair-pulling performance over a young man from the city proper who had evidently been keeping company with both girls. Of course nobody interfered and after the pair had tired of their amusement they decided to call the bout a draw and quit.

A resident of that vicinity states that this is no uncommon occurrence, and that if the girls don't fight the boys do, or their mothers take it up, and so there is always plenty of amusement going on, the people up in the city know nothing about it.

Itching Scalp.

Scald Head and the Most Violent Forms of Eczema and Salt Rheum Promptly and Thoroughly Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Among small children, scald head and similar itching skin diseases are most prevalent, and the worst feature is that these ailments, which are apparently trivial at first, almost invariably develop into chronic eczema if neglected.

There is but one treatment that physicians are unanimous in recommending for scald heads and eczema, and that is Dr. Chase's Ointment, the great antiseptic healer. It promptly stops the distressing itching which accompanies these diseases and positively produces a thorough and complete cure.

Scores and thousands of men and women stand ready to vouch for the merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has brought about some of the most marvelous cures ever recorded. In justice to yourself and family, you cannot do without it in your home.

Mr. J. H. Grant, 716 Joseph Campau ave., Detroit, Mich., writes:

"For three years I have been troubled by an intense itching on my body. So terrible was it at times that I could get no rest night or day. I tried all kinds of ointments and blood purifiers, but could get no relief. Mr. H. A. Nicolai of 379 Division street recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. A few applications stopped the itching and I have felt nothing since."

Baby Eczema.

Mr. F. S. Rose of 133 Sixteenth street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"Our baby boy suffered for some time with that wretched eczema, and we were unable to find anything to cure or even relieve his pain. A few applications of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment stopped the itching and healed the sores, and a bright, natural skin now takes their place."

Dr. Chase's Ointment does not cause pain when applied, but soothes the sore or inflamed surface, 50 cents at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Earl and the Highwayman.

One night when the Earl of Stanhope was walking alone in the Kentish lanes a man jumped out of the hedge, leveled a pistol and demanded his purse.

"My good man, I have no money with me," said Lord Stanhope in his remarkably slow tones. The robber laid hands on his watch.

"No," Lord Stanhope went on, "that watch you must not have. It was given to me by one I love. It is worth £100. If you will trust me, I will go back to Chevening and bring a £100 note and place it in the hollow of that tree. I cannot lose my watch."

The man did trust him. The earl did bring the note. Years after Lord Stanhope was at a city dinner, and next to him sat a London alderman of great wealth, a man widely respected. He and the earl talked of many things and found each other mutually entertaining. Next day Lord Stanhope received a letter, out of which dropped a £100 note. "It was your lordship's kind loan of this sum," said the note, "that started me in life and enabled me to have the honor of sitting next to your lordship at dinner." A strange story; but the Stanhopes are a strange race, and things happen to them that never did or could occur to other people.

To Be Cheerful.

The sovereign, voluntary path to cheerfulness, if our spontaneous cheerfulness be lost, is to sit up cheerfully, to look around cheerfully and to act and speak as if cheerfulness were already there. If such conduct doesn't make you soon feel cheerful, nothing else will on that occasion. So, to feel brave, act as if we were brave, use all our will to that end, and a courage fit will very likely replace the fit of fear. Again, in order to feel kindly toward a person to whom we have been inimical, the only way is more or less deliberately to smile, to make sympathetic inquiries and to force ourselves to say genial things. One hearty laugh together will bring enemies into closer communion of heart than hours spent on both sides in inward wrestling with the mental demon of uncharitable feelings.

BIG HOTEL BURNED.

Over 200 Guests Escaped, Most Of Them In Night
Attire.

DEPARTED IN VARIEGATED CARS.

Some Women Dressed In Combinations of Men and Women's Clothes.
Employees Escaped—Electric Lights
Went Out—Guests in Darkness.

West Baden, Ind., June 15.—Of the 268 persons who were in the Mineral Springs hotel fire here, it is now believed that every one escaped with his life. Mr. Sinclair, the proprietor, has been busy checking off the names, but the accuracy of his work is handicapped by the fact that all the records and papers, including the hotel register, were lost. Many of the guests left from their homes in various parts of the country, the most prominent going to Chicago, Louisville and Indianapolis. The rest are at French Lick. The loss on the hotel building is estimated at $250,000, with insurance aggregating $110,000. In addition to this the loss in diamonds, jewelry and clothing belonging to the guests, it is estimated, will reach $50,000.

Many that left on the train were dressed in odd pieces of clothing, picked up from many sources. Watchmen Failed to Quench Fire.

The conflagration had its origin in the kitchen. The night watchman attempted to extinguish the blaze with hand grenades, but seeing his attempts were in vain he rushed to the office, notifying the night clerk, and together they ran rapidly through the halls, bursting open doors and yelling "fire." It was but a few moments after the discovery of the fire that the electric light circuit was burned out, and the panic-stricken guests groped around in their rooms for wearing apparel and other personal property. Out of the 268 guests who had registered at the hotel the evening before, only 12 succeeded in escaping from the burning building with all their personal property.

Miss Leslie, the theatrical critic of a Chicago paper, who has been at the hotel with her niece for the past about two weeks, escaped with nothing but her night robes. Miss Leslie's traveling wardrobe consisted of a night robe, a gentleman's shirt, which she purchased at the village store, and her bath robe. Her little niece was provided for by an old colored woman who furnished her with one of her little daughter's dresses.

Miss Sinclair, daughter of one of the proprietors of the hotel, had a very narrow escape, losing all her wearing apparel, diamonds and other personal property.

Fifty or sixty female employees of the hotel, who were quartered in the rooms on the upper floor of the new annex, which has just been completed at a cost of $70,000, escaped unharmed. This building, with the hotel, was also destroyed.

About half an hour after the fire was discovered much of the building was ablaze. The building was prodded with fire escapes, and on the end of the building, extending from the ground to the roof, was an escape in a spiral fashion. It was rough this that many of the guests got out.

Many Had Narrow Escapes.

Colonel Howard, general agent of a insurance company of New York, safely escaped in his night clothing, others had narrow escapes. The massive fireproof safe in the ice contained $10,000 in cash, which guests had deposited for safe keeping. The safe is in the cellar, completely covered with the burning debris, and it will not be known for several days whether the valuables are safe.

AN UNPREJUDICED OBSERVER.

Frederic Harrison, a distinguished Englishman, has written an article on "Impressions of America." His impressions appear to have been gained from careful observation and personal acquaintance with the subject discussed. He remarks on the lack of a leisure class and on various differences between the way in which money is spent here and the way in which it is spent abroad, "but," he adds, "I saw nothing to suggest that wealth in America is worse acquired or worse applied than it is in Europe."

Speaking of the riches of the whole nation he says that "no competent observer can doubt that in wealth, manufactures and material progress of all kinds, the United States, in a very few years, must hold the first place in the world without dispute." Moreover, its population will have an education "second only to that of Germany and Switzerland and superior to that of any other European nation." If in art, literature and science we have produced little as yet that is superlatively fine, the diffusion of culture is extraordinary.

We may profess indifference to what foreigners think or say of us, but the truth is that we are not indifferent. It is so rare that the visitor from abroad who comes here and goes home and writes about us looks at us with unprejudiced eyes that the sound judgment and reasonable fairness displayed by Mr. Harrison makes his contribution a welcome addition to a kind of literature which is seldom either interesting or important.

BOOMING FORAKER.

The New York Sun, commenting on the smashing of the third term scheme, says it will not review the candidates which this act of the president brings to the front. It does, however, mention a considerable number of them, including Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana; Wm. B. Allison and Governor Shaw, of Iowa; Wm. P. Frye, of Maine, and Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. The Sun then remarks: "But when it comes to serious comparison of one possibility with another it should not be forgotten that there remains a citizen in that modern nest of presidents, Ohio, who possesses in no ordinary degree the qualities that in this country make the powerful candidate and the successful executive. We refer to the Hon. Joseph Benson Foraker."

"If a statesman should be sought having the Hon. James G. Blaine's force, his fire, his experience, his bound view of things, his partisanship, and, above all, his identification in spirit and political quality with the people of America, we incline to think that the choice would end in Senator Foraker. He is as old or as young as it is well to be, being in the first youth of maturity. He is a man whom the country with its vast interests in industry and commerce need have no fear of; and with an American such as he in the White House, one would need to have no fear for the country. While the American farm yard would prosper in security, the American eagle would not live in terror lest it should have to hide its head."

HAILED AS A HERO.

The Georgia sheriff who defied a mob and prevented a lynching is hailed by the southern press as a hero. His conduct is extolled in glowing terms, as if it were something unusual for a sworn officer of the law to do his duty. The world is pretty well aware that it is unusual, where "prominent citizens" by the hundred are bent on taking the life of some helpless and friendless wretch. Bravery is a quality for which the men of the south used to be famed. Bravery in the line of duty is heroism, but it ought not to be so unusual in the south or elsewhere as to attract marked attention. More sheriffs of the type of this Georgian are one of the chief wants in the lynching belt.

Although the average western farmer nearly goes into spasms when the word trust is mentioned, a western man is advocating the formation of a corn and wheat growers' trust. A great scheme, certainly; but how does the promoter promise to centralize the millions of "plants" to be included?

The board of trade should not be suffered to die of inanition. A little earnest work would put it on its feet. Shall it be said that public spirit and enterprise are dead in East Liverpool?

That East Liverpool did not observe flag day is no indication that East Liverpool does not honor the flag.

The wheat crop, like the pig iron crop, promises to be enormous this year.

Rural free delivery are multiplying in Ohio. This means more good roads.

OBITUARY.

Clinton Halstead.

After an illness of two years with consumption, Clinton Halstead, residing on May street in the West End, died this morning at 4:30 o'clock. For the past several weeks the afflicted man had been confined to his bed and his death was anticipated long before it did occur. A few months since Mr. Halstead was sent to Florida by the local order of Maccabees, of which he was a member, in the hope that it would be beneficial to his health. He received no relief, however, and since his return had been practically helpless.

Mr. Halstead is survived by a wife and three children, the latter being Ernest, Virgil and Cecil. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the First M. E. church. The Macca- bees will attend.

The Mutilated Bill Swindle.

The antiquity of a swindle rarely interferes with its success if it be skillfully managed, else one confidence game that has recently been played here profitably would never have been revived. It depends on the practice of the United States government in redeeming any part of a torn bill for the amount of money it represents. The value of a part of a bill is very exactly determined by means of an apparatus which measures the fragment of the bill with the greatest accuracy. This mechanism prevents anybody from getting in return for part of a torn bill any more than it is really worth.

That fact is not generally known, and it is the ignorance of the public in the matter that has lately made possible the success of a well dressed swindler who has been operating downtown. He has with him parts of a $10 bill bearing the bill number. He explains to waiters, barkeepers, cashiers and similar persons that he is too busy to go to the subtreasury and redeem the bill for which he could secure the full value. He offers for that reason dispose of the torn piece for a small sum and has succeeded in getting from $5 to $7 for fragments of a bill that could never be redeemed for more than half those sums.

The purchasers, of course, had confidence in the mistaken theory that the full value of a bill would be paid at the treasury for any part of it, however small the section might be. By dividing a $10 bill into five or six pieces and selling them on such liberal terms this form of swindling may be made very profitable.—New York Sun.

GLEANINGS OF A DAY

In and About

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

The slip house man and a mold runner at the East End plant became embroiled in a quarrel yesterday afternoon and finally settled their differences by fighting a fierce duel with nature's weapons. According to an eye-witness blood flowed like water, the principal cause being that each fellow landed on the other's nose in the first round. The bout lasted about 20 minutes, during which time each man received enough punching to partly satisfy his honor. Just who came out ahead is a little uncertain, some of the witnesses claiming that the slip house man came out second best, while others assert that the mold runner got the worst of the bout.

Marion McCarter, who is employed at the National plant, badly smashed his finger yesterday afternoon. It was caught in the jigger and so badly torn that he will be unable to use the injured member for some time.

WINE OF CARDUI

Cairo, Ky., Sept. 6, 1899.
I take pleasure in writing a few lines in praise of your wonderful medicine, Wine of Cardui. It is the best medicine I ever heard of. I am thirty-six years old and have been sick all my life. I had a dozen doctors, but none of them did me any good. I have taken one bottle of Wine of Cardui and will take another with Black-Draught. I have been married six years and have a baby five years old. I had womb and kidney trouble. My monthly period was so bad that sometimes it came twice a month. I was too sick to do work for a family of three. I was in bed when I got the bottle of Wine of Cardui. Now I am up and can do most of my work. When I was sick I could not sleep at night. I sleep well at night now. A friend of mine advised me to use Black-Draught with Wine of Cardui.

AN UNPREJUDICED OBSERVER.
Frederic Harrison, a distinguished Englishman, has written an article on "Impressions of America." His impressions appear to have been gained from careful observation and personal acquaintance with the subject discussed. He remarks on the lack of a leisure class and on various differences between the way in which money is spent here and the way in which it is spent abroad, "but," he adds, "I saw nothing to suggest that wealth in America is worse acquired or worse applied than it is in Europe."

Speaking of the riches of the whole nation he says that "no competent observer can doubt that in wealth, manufactures and material progress of all kinds, the United States, in a very few years, must hold the first place in the world without dispute." Moreover, its population will have an education "second only to that of Germany and Switzerland and superior to that of any other European nation." If in art, literature and science we have produced little as yet that is superlatively fine, the diffusion of culture is extraordinary.

We may profess indifference to what foreigners think or say of us, but the truth is that we are not indifferent. It is so rare that the visitor from abroad who comes here and goes home and writes about us looks at us with unprejudiced eyes that the sound judgment and reasonable fairness displayed by Mr. Harrison makes his contribution a welcome addition to a kind of literature which is seldom either interesting or important.

BOOMING FORAKER.

The New York Sun, commenting on the smashing of the third term scheme, says it will not review the candidates which this act of the president brings to the front. It does, however, mention a considerable number of them, including Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana; Wm. B. Allison and Governor Shaw, of Iowa; Wm. P. Frye, of Maine, and Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. The Sun then remarks: "But when it comes to serious comparison of one possibility with another it should not be forgotten that there remains a citizen in that modern nest of presidents, Ohio, who possesses in no ordinary degree the qualities that in this country make the powerful candidate and the successful executive. We refer to the Hon. Joseph Benson Foraker."

"If a statesman should be sought having the Hon. James G. Blaine's force, his fire, his experience, his unbound view of things, his partisanship, and, above all, his identification in spirit and political quality with the people of America, we incline to think that the choice would end in Senator Foraker. He is as old or as young as it is well to be, being in the first youth of maturity. He is a man whom the country with its vast interests in industry and commerce need have no fear of; and with an American such as he in the White House, one would need to have no fear for the country. While the American farm yard would prosper in security, the American eagle would not live in terror lest it should have to hide its head."

HAILED AS A HERO.

The Georgia sheriff who defied a mob and prevented a lynching is hailed by the southern press as a hero. His conduct is extolled in glowing terms, as if it were something unusual for a sworn officer of the law to do his duty. The world is pretty well aware that it is unusual, where "prominent citizens" by the hundred are bent on taking the life of some helpless and friendless wretch. Bravery is a quality for which the men of the men of the south used to be famed. Bravery in the line of duty is heroism, but it ought not to be so unusual in the south or elsewhere as to attract marked attention. More sheriffs of the type of this Georgian are one of the chief wants in the lynching belt.

Although the average western farmer nearly goes into spasms when the word trust is mentioned, a western man is advocating the formation of a corn and wheat growers' trust. A great scheme, certainly; but how does the promoter promise to centralize the millions of "plants" to be included?

The board of trade should not be suffered to die of inanition. A little earnest work would put it on its feet. Shall it be said that public spirit and enterprise are dead in East Liverpool?

That East Liverpool did not observe flag day is no indication that East Liverpool does not honor the flag.

The wheat crop, like the pig iron crop, promises to be enormous this year.

Rural free delivery are multiplying in Ohio. This means more good roads.

OBITUARY.

Clinton Halstead.

For the past several weeks the afflicted man had been confined to his bed and his death was anticipated long before it did occur. A few months since Mr. Halstead was sent to Florida by the local order of Maccabees, of which he was a member, in the hope that it would be beneficial to his health. He received no relief, however, and since his return had been practically helpless.

Mr. Halstead is survived by a wife and three children, the latter being Ernest, Virgil and Cecil. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the First M. E. church. The Maccabees will attend.

The Mutilated Bill Swindle.

The antiquity of a swindle rarely interferes with its success if it be skillfully managed, else one confidence game that has recently been played here profitably would never have been revived. It depends on the practice of the United States government in redeeming any part of a torn bill for the amount of money it represents. The value of a part of a bill is very exactly determined by means of an apparatus which measures the fragment of the bill with the greatest accuracy. This mechanism prevents anybody from getting in return for part of a torn bill any more than it is really worth.

That fact is not generally known, and it is the ignorance of the public in the matter that has lately made possible the success of a well dressed swindler who has been operating down town. He has with him parts of a $10 bill bearing the bill number. He explains to waiters, barkeepers, cashiers and similar persons that he is too busy to go to the subtreasury and redeem the bill for which he could secure the full value. He offers for that reason to dispose of the torn piece for a small sum and has succeeded in getting from $5 to $7 for fragments of a bill that could never be redeemed for more than half those sums.

The purchasers, of course, had confidence in the mistaken theory that the full value of a bill would be paid at the treasury for any part of it, however small the section might be. By dividing a $10 bill into five or six pieces and selling them on such liberal terms this form of swindling may be made very profitable.—New York Sun.

Serving the Public.

Wunn—But if you insist that the man who works for the public good without hope of gaining gratitude is a crank, what do you call the man that expects gratitude? Tuther-Him? Oh, he's just a plain fool.—Indianapolis Press.

FERRYBOATS COLLIDE

In East River And Heavy Loss Of Life, It Is Feared Occurred.

MANY PASSENGERS RESCUED.

U. S. Transport Ingalls Turned Turtle, as Did Flying Rock, Afterward—One Man Killed—Number
May Have Perished.

New York, June 15.—The wooden side wheeler Northfield, which has been in the service of the Staten Island Ferry company for about the past 38 years, was rammed by the steel-hulled propeller Mauch Chunk, used as a ferry boat by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, off the Staten Island ferry slip at the foot of Whitehall street, and in less than 10 minutes the Northfield sank at the outer end of the Spanish line pier in the East river. The Mauch Chunk, which was badly damaged, landed about the two dozen passengers who were aboard of her. Over a hundred of the passengers of the sunken Northfield were dragged out of the water by people along shore and the crews of the fleet of the river tugs, which promptly responded to the ferry boat's call for help. A few of the Northfield's passengers were hurt in the accident and the police believe that some lives were lost. Captain Daniel Gully, of the tug boat Mutual, who saw the ferry boats crash together, said that immediately after the collision between 25 and 30 of the passengers leaped into the water and that many of those perished.
Captain Gully also declared that he is sure over a hundred of the Northfield's passengers were drowned. The captains of other tugboats who were early on the scene, however, are inclined to think that the disaster was not so serious as regards loss of life.
No dead bodies have been recovered.

U. S. Transport Turned Over.

New York, June 15.—While the United States transport Ingalls was in the balance drydock at the Erie basin, South Brooklyn, she suddenly slipped from the blocks and capsized.
One man is known to have been killed and many injured. It is suspected that the vessel was thrown from an even keel by ballast improperly placed, or by the shifting of the blocks on which she rested, causing her to list to starboard, driving the shoring beams through the rotten walls of the old dock. Besides the mechanics and other workmen on the vessel and dock there was supposed to have been about 30 Italian laborers in the hold of the ship. While the workmen were trying to escape, the dock itself turned on its side and sank in about 50 feet of water. A number of the men were borne down into the water and jammed under and beneath the wreckage, which rose to the surface. How many were caught could not be learned last night. Martin Anderson, a painter, was caught under the descending side of the ship and killed outright. Others were dragged out of the water badly injured or half drowned and hurried to the hospitals.

Add to the horrors was the uncertainty of the fate of the men in the vessel's hold. Some managed to get to the deck and leap into the water as the vessel was sinking, but it is feared that the majority were less fortunate.

WILL NOT FLOOD MINE.

Efforts to Rescue Bodies of Port Royal, Pa., Disaster Victims to Be Made Today.

Pittsburg, June 15.—Since the Port Royal mine disaster the officials of the Pittsburg Coal company, with headquarters in Pittsburg, have been in daily communication with those in charge of the mine, where the explosion occurred. It has been stated that the mine is to be flooded before another attempt is made to rescue the bodies of the men who lost their lives. When seen at the company's office, directly after a conference in regard to the disaster, and in answer to a question as to whether the mine would be flooded today, as reported, President Frank M. Osborne, of the coal company, said yesterday:

"We will make every effort to re-sue the bodies of the men who lost their lives in the mine. We will not flood the mine unless it becomes an absolute necessity. It is a valuable property, and to flood it would mean catastrophe. The authorities at the mine will secure the bodies will likely be made tomorrow. Just as soon as these bodies are gotten out the part of the mine thought to be burning smothered this way."

HARRIS LIKELY THE MAN.

Quay Confirmed He Probably Would Be Named For Penn's Treasurer.

Pittsburg, June 15.—United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay was in Pittsburg for a few hours yesterday on his way from the east to his Beau-ver home.

Regarding the Republican candidate for state treasurer to be nominated Senator Quay confirmed the statement made in the Pittsburg Post seven days ago that Representative Frank G. Harris, of Clearfield county, is most likely to be the man.

temperatures. Tomorrow showers; fresh east to northeast winds.

last evening to consider the advisability of erecting a new city building these matters public.

ers of the property offered for sale.

The church bazaar given in O. O.
Allison's new store building by the an ornament that a lady can wear.

Nearly every thing was sold and a neat sum was realized.

JAPAN IN WINTER.*Colder In Homes of the Rich Than In Open Sunshine.

"I suppose that the American people and the Russians are the only western races that really keep warm in winter.
Still those who dwell in other countries admit that they have the same ideal by their inefficient effort to attain to it," writes Anna N. Benjamin in Ainslee's.

"The Japanese winter is most trying on account of its continual dampness, but the Japanese are content to remain cold. They make almost no effort to overcome
it. The old 'bushido' (chivalrous) idea of the 'samurai' (knights) was that it was effeminate to feel cold, and such is their severe training that they do not really feel it as we do.
The wearing of some extra 'kimones' and the use of a 'hibachi,' or brazier, in which are a few tiny sticks of lighted charcoal, are the only concessions to winter weather. With the 'hibachi' they never pretend to heat more than their finger tips, which they hold over the coals. It is used when the house is entirely open.

"The houses, as every one knows, are tut of thin, light wood, and the sliding panels which serve for doors and windows have paper panes. They are as apt to be open as closed during the day. When I took my first jinrikisha ride through the streets of Nagasaki, I forgot my own sufferings in my sympathy for this unhappy nation, which as surely as the cold came endured such misery from it.
The coolies wear thin blue cotton clothes and are always padding through the mud. The storekeepers sit out in their open booths, and the women go bareheaded about the streets.
In the houses of the rich the still cold behind the closed panels is often more intense than that outside in the sunshine, where the air is stirring. The schools and public buildings are equally frigid.

"It seemed to me that the only warm things in Japan were the babies, who looked like bundles of gay colored crêpe, their round heads covered by knit caps. They slumber peacefully tucked down their mothers' backs. The attempt to keep warm in winter is not entirely a modern improvement, though it goes with western civilization. The Koreans do it very thoroughly, the Chinese to a certain extent. The Japanese, as a race, continue to scorn it as they always have done, and this is merely one of a hundred examples which prove that the Japanese are still true to their traditions in their daily life and as yet little affected in the ordering of their homes by the ideas adopted from the west."

A Case of Color Blindness.

"Yours is a perplexing case," said the oculist. "You call red purple and refer to tile green as turkey red."

"Yes," replied the visitor, with a content smile. "I fancy I was born that way."

"It's the most aggravated case of color blindness I have ever encountered in my professional experience."

"That's it. I want you to write me out a statement to that effect. Never mind what the fee is. You see, my wife has a lot of samples she wants matched, and she'll ask me to tackle the job some time next week for certain."

And then the oculist had his suspicions.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mexico's Rainy Season.

What they call the rainy season in Mexico comes only in the form of showers, which fall in the afternoon.
These showers usually occur every

There is no steady downpour, how-in Mexico the rainy season is regarded

TONE OF GREATER CONFIDENCE.*Agricultural Bureau Confirmation of Private Wheat Estimates Helped Business.

New York, June 15.—R. G. Dunn &
Co's Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Confirmation by the agricultural bureau of recent private estimates of the wheat crop has given to business a tone of greater confidence. Retail operations, both east and west, are larger, and distribution of merchandise by the wholesale trade is increasing.
The labor situation is gradually improving. The fact that in some directions manufacturers would be glad of a temporary shut down of works

Pig iron production on June 1 was at the rate of 314,505 tons weekly, according to statistics compiled by The Iron Age. This is about the anticipated increase for May, and establishes a new high water mark, exceeding the previous record of 13,380 tons.
An interesting feature of the situation is the decrease of furnaces in blast to 252, which is 44 less than were actively employed Feb. 1, 1900, when the weekly output was 298,014 tons. Although new orders for pig iron have been light in recent weeks, actual deliveries on old contracts must have reached a heavy total, for furnace stocks, June 1, were but 407, 723 tons, a decrease of 30,565 tons during May. Conditions in this industry must be satisfactory if material is taken faster than it can be produced, notwithstanding a new record of output each month. Prices are easier.
Bessemer pig showing a loss of about $9 a ton, compared with the quotation in February last year, when the production was near present figures.

This absence of inflation in prices is the best symptom in the market, and precludes the possibility of a collapse like last year's. In finished products there is great activity, owing to the large amount

FERRYBOATS COLLIDE

MANY PASSENGERS RESCUED.

U. S. Transport Ingalls Turned Turned Turtle, as Did Floating Rock, Afterward—One Man Killed—Number
May Have Perished.

New York, June 15.—The wooden side wheeler Northfield, which has been in the service of the Staten Island Ferry company for about the past 38 years, was rammed by the steel-hulled propeller Mauch Chunk, used as a ferry boat by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, off the Staten Island ferry slip at the foot of Whitehall street, and in less than 10 minutes the Northfield sank at the outer end of the Spanish line pier in the East river. The Mauch Chunk, which was badly damaged, landed about the two dozen passengers who were aboard her. Over a hundred of the passengers of the sunken Northfield were dragged out of the water by people along shore and the crews of the fleet of the river tugs, which promptly responded to the ferry boat's call for help. A few of the Northfield's passengers were hurt in the accident and the police believe that some lives were lost. Captain Daniel Gully, of the tug boat Mutual, who saw the ferry boats crash together, said that immediately after the collision between 25 and 30 of the passengers leaped into the water and that many of those perished. Captain Gully also declared that he is sure over a hundred of the Northfield's passengers were drowned. The captains of other tugboats who were early on the scene, however, are inclined to think that the disaster was not so serious as regards loss of life. No dead bodies have been recovered.

U. S. Transport Turned Over.

New York, June 15.—While the United States transport Ingalls was in the balance drydock at the Erie basin, South Brooklyn, she suddenly slipped from the blocks and capsized. One man is known to have been killed and many injured. It is supposed that the vessel was thrown from an even keel by ballast impropply placed, or by the shifting of the blocks on which she rested, causing her to list to starboard, driving the shoring beams through the rotten walls of the old dock. Besides the mechanics and other workmen on the vessel and dock there was supposed to have been about 30 Italian laborers in the hold of the ship. While the workmen were trying to escape, the dock itself turned on its side and sank in about 50 feet of water. A number of the men were borne down into the water and jammed under and beneath the wreckage, which rose to the surface. How many were caught could not be learned last night. Martin Anderson, a painter, was caught under the descending side of the ship and killed outright. Others were dragged out of the water badly injured or half drowned and hurried to the hospitals.

Add to the horrors was the uncertainty of the fate of the men in the vessel's hold. Some managed to get to the deck and leap into the water as the vessel was sinking, but it is feared that the majority were less fortunate.

WILL NOT FLOOD MINE.

Efforts to Rescue Bodies of Port Royal, Pa., Disaster Victims to Be Made Today.

Pittsburg, June 15.—Since the Port Royal mine disaster the officials of the Pittsburg Coal company, with headquarters in Pittsburg, have been in daily communication with those in charge of the mine, where the explosion occurred. It has been stated that the mine is to be flooded before another attempt is made to rescue the bodies of the men who lost their lives. When seen at the company's office, directly after a conference in regard to the disaster, and in answer to a question as to whether the mine would be flooded today, as reported, President Frank M. Osborne, of the coal company, said yesterday:

"We will make every effort to rescue the bodies of the men who lost their lives in the mine. We will not flood the mine unless it becomes an absolute necessity. It is a valuable property, and to flood it would mean the suspension of operations for some time. The authorities at the mine inform me today that another attempt to secure the bodies will likely be made tomorrow. Just as soon as these bodies are gotten out the part of the mine thought to be burning will be bratticed and the flames smothered this way."

Agricultural Bureau Confirmation of Private Wheat Estimates Helped Business.

New York, June 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Confirmation by the agricultural bureau of recent private estimates of the wheat crop has given to business a tone of greater confidence. Retail operations, both east and west, are larger, and distribution of merchandise by the wholesale trade is increasing. The labor situation is gradually mending, with the appreciation of the fact, that in some directions manufacturers would be glad of a temporary shut down of works.

Pig iron production on June 1 was at the rate of 314,505 tons weekly, according to statistics compiled by The Iron Age. This is about the anticipated increase for May, and establishes a new high water mark, exceeding the previous record of 13,380 tons. This absence of inflation in prices is the best symptom in the market, and precludes the possibility of a collapse like last year's. Finished products there is great activity, owing to the large amount of goods to be delivered.

Wheat declined to a more reasonable level with withdrawal of speculative support. The government report of the condition of June 1 was chiefly responsible. A crop this year equal to the greatest ever harvested was indicated by the official statement, and as department figures have generally proven below the final yield, there was heavy selling of options, with a fall below 80 cents for cash wheat at this city. Foreign buying promptly decreased, with the prospect of more satisfactory terms. Notwithstanding somewhat lower quotations for corn, the provision market has developed much strength, and pork products at the west are receiving the attention of speculators to an unusual extent, mess pork rising to $15.75 here.

Failures for the week numbered 179 in the United States, against 162 last year, and 23 in Canada, against 21 last year.

UNION PACIFIC AND ST. PAUL.*Overwhelming Proportion of Dealings Friday in These Stocks

New York, June 15.—An overwhelming proportion of the day's dealings Friday was in Union Pacific and St. Paul, and the scrutiny of the day's transactions will reveal that the strength in the market was largely confined to the same stocks. Influence of that strength on the general list was considerable during the early part of the day, but it steadily waned. There were some other upward movements, but these also had little effect upon the general list. But while prices in general refused to respond in sympathy with the points of strength they were not conspicuously affected by the heavy realization that went on all day under cover of the strength of the two market leaders. In fact, it was not until Union Pacific itself relapsed in the last hour of the trading that the selling made any notable impression on prices. At that time there were sharp breaks all around, which carried the average level of prices below Thursday night, and the subsequent rallies were insignificant, the market closing heavily renewed selling.

The extreme rise in St. Paul reached 6½ and in Union Pacific 1¾. Colorado Fuel made another sensational advance of 11 points, with a relapse of 3½, and Tennessee Coal rose 4½ apparently in sympathy. Rumors continued that these companies were to be taken in by the United States Steel corporation.

There were also movements in other stocks. The jump in the call loan rate to 4½ per cent late in the day and the unexpected announcement of an engagement of $500,000 in gold for shipment to Germany, which, however, it subsequently appeared, is not to go out today, were influences in the selling movement.

The bond market was irregular in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, par value, $6,240,000.

U. S. 3s, registered, declined ¼ per cent on the last call.

MARKSMEN WERE DESERTERS.*Heavy Loss of Officers in the Skirmish at Lipa Explained.

Manila, June 15.—The recent battle with the insurgents at Lipa, in which Lieutenant Springer was killed and Captain Wilhelm and Lieutenant Lee were mortally wounded, was begun by the Americans.

The disproportionate number of officers hit is said to be chargeable to the fact that there were several deserters from the American army to the rebels.

Harrisburg, June 15.—A short session of the house was held Friday, at which a large number of appropriation bills passed first and second reading. The Focht and Scott supplemental bills to the rapid transit laws passed first reading. A resolution reported from the rules committee and adopted, making bills on second reading the order of business for Monday night's session. Under this order the bills will be taken up for second reading.

FIVE NEGROES WERE HANGED.

All on One Scaffold—Were Members of Knights of Archers and Had Killed Two Officers.

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY JOSEPH A. ALTSHELER.

Moved more by impulse and instinct than by thought, I snatched out my own pistol and fired at the head in the window. The man uttered a deep sigh; the body dropped forward and swayed there; I heard the light drip, drip of something on the floor, and then the body fell inside the room.

The girl, suddenly awakened by the terrible sounds and half in a maze, cried out in fright and then began to ask in a high, trembling voice what had happened!

"The British have attacked us," I said. "One of them was in the shadow, and I threw him back. Stand out of the range of the window." I did not want her to see the thing lying on the floor under the window, and I shoved the table in front of it.

She obeyed, for I spoke the last sentence very sharply. The window was wide open, and expecting to see another face there I held my second pistol ready, but none appeared, and I had no doubt that they feared Crowder was dead.

Taking the risk, I reached out an arm, seized the shutter and slammed it shut, securing it as best I could with the leather strap and nail used as a fastening. Then, with my ear near the crevice, I listened, but could not hear our enemies. I feared at first to look out lest I should receive a bullet, but still hearing nothing I applied my eye and saw that the men had gone back to their fire. They were all there—four. I counted them and knew that none was missing. They were deliberating evidently over the fall of their leader and what next to do, and I took an immediate resolution.

"Light the candle," I said to the girl. "Hold it to the fire. There's enough heat left to start the wick to burning."

She did so and saw that something lay behind the table.

"What is that?" she cried.

"The dancer and singer of last night," I replied, seeing that I would have to tell. "The leader of those desperados outside came into our fort, but he came into his grave."

She retreated, shuddering, to the farthest corner of the room.

"Now, you do exactly as I say," I continued. "Remember that you are the rank and file of this army, and I am its commander."

"I will obey you," she said.

I quickly reloaded my pistol.

Then I shoved the table away again and, overcoming my repulsion, dragged the dead body to a sitting position. A jerk struck into my marrow, but I dragged off the red British coat and, having thrown off my own, put it on. Then I gathered up the wallet of food and Old Put's bridle and took down the bar from the door.

"Come," I said; "we are going to leave this place while they are planning by the fire and their backs are turned to us."

It was a bold measure, involving many risks, but I believed that it would succeed if we kept our courage and presence of mind. For at least two or three minutes they would think I was Crowder, victorious, and that would be worth much. When I had taken down the bar, I stopped a moment.

"Keep by my side," I said. "Remember that we must become separated by chance. Here, take this pistol! You can shoot, can't you?"

She said "Yes" and took the pistol. Then I opened the door, and we dashed out, running with quick and noiseless steps across the open toward the wood, which rose in a dim line ahead of us.

While the window opened toward the campfire of the besiegers the door did not, and we had gone perhaps 50 yards before they saw us. This I knew by the surprised shout that came to us, and looking back I saw them hesitating, as if in doubt about my identity, and at last running toward their horses. I was glad that they would pursue on horseback, and I had taken that probability into consideration when we made our dash from the house, for even at the distance I could see that the dim wood looked dense and a poor place for the use of horses.

"Courage, Julia!" I said, taking her hand. "In a minute or two we will be into the woods, and they mean safety."

I looked back a second time. The guerrillas had reached their horses, mounted them and turned their heads our way, but in doing it their time lost was our gain. Unless lamed by some unlucky pistol shot we would surely gain the wood. They fired once or twice, and I heard the thunder of their horses' hoofs, but I had little fear. I still held the girl's hand in mine, and she made no effort to draw it away. She was running with a firm, sure step, and, though her face was white and her eye excited, she seemed to retain both her courage and presence of mind.

The wood was not as far as I had calculated, and when our pursuers were many yards away we dashed into it at such headlong haste that I tripped over a vine and fell upon my nose, burying it in a pile of soft leaves, which saved it from harm. But I was up again, rejoicing at the accident, for in a wood interlaced with vines horses could make no progress.

"I hope you are not hurt?" asked Julia anxiously.

"Hurt? Not a bit of it!" I replied. "What a blessing these woods are! How dark it is in here, and what a blessing that is too!"

In fact, the wood was our good luck and our best luck at that, for even we on foot found it difficult to make our way through it. Afar we could hear the British cursing in profusion and variety as they strove to force their horses through the dense bush.

"Hold my hand," I said to Julia, "for otherwise I might lose you in all this darkness and density."

But instead of waiting for her to take my hand, which she might not have done, I took hers, and bidding her again to step lightly, I led the way, curving among the trees and bushes like a brook winding around the hills in search of a level channel. My object was to leave our pursuers at a loss concerning our course, and we soon ceased to hear their swearing or the struggles of their horses. I dropped into a walk, and of course the girl did likewise.

"I think we are safe now," I said. "There is not one chance in a hundred to bring them across our path again. What a fine wood! What a glorious wood! There is no such wood as this in England. It grew here especially for our safety, Julia."

"It did grow up in time," she replied, "but now that you think us safe again you can call me Miss Howard and not Julia."

"That's true, and now that we are safe again I must ask you, Miss Howard, as an especial favor to me, to please quit holding my hand."

"I am not holding your hand, Mr. Marcel!" she replied indignantly. "It is you who are holding mine, but you shall not do so moment longer."

She tried to jerk her hand away. I let her jerk three or four times, and then I added as an afterthought:

"It is very dark here, and there is still danger that we might become separated. I think I will let you hold it a little longer, but I shall endure it merely to rejoin Morgan, I chose the course which promised the best speed."

Old Put carried the girl, and I walked on before, holding his bridle in my hand. I sank into a kind of walking doze—that is, I slept on my feet and with my feet moving. I was but dimly conscious, but I knew that I could put my trust in Old Put and that he would warn me if she made any attempt to escape. Whether the girl was asleep or wide awake I knew not, for my brain was too tired and dull then to tell me; but, looking back once, she seemed to be awake. She had slept well in the hut, while only a short nap had fallen to me.

We were in the darkest hours, those that stretch out their length between midnight and dawn, and I walked on over a dim and shadowy world. Sometimes I was not conscious that my feet touched anything but air. This queer feeling that I was walking on nothing lasted for more than half an hour, and then my half sleep took another phase. I came back to earth, and the red clay of the road took on for awhile the color of blood. The trees by the roadside raced past, rows of phantoms, holding out withered arms and making gestures that I did not understand. Once the dead face of Crowder rose up out of the road and confronted me, but when I said, "You were a murderer and worse and compelled me to kill you," and walked boldly at him he melted away like so much smoke, and I laughed aloud at such a poor kind of a ghost that would run at the first fire.

"What on earth are you laughing at?" demanded the girl from the horse's back.

I awoke with a jerk and replied: "At your gratitude."

But I was on the verge of sleep again in five minutes, and the trees and the hills and the bushes were playing new tricks with me. The bushes were especially impudent, nodding to me and then to each other and then saying aloud:

"Here he goes! Look at him—making a fool of himself and wasting his time over an English girl who hates him and all his countrymen!"

I picked up a stone, threw it at one excessively impudent bush and shouted at the top of my voice:

"It's a lie!"

"For heaven's sake, Mr. Marcel," cried the girl, "what's the matter? Have you a fever?"

"Wait," I said for the third time. The footsteps approached rapidly, and a figure, gigantic and formidable in the gray light, appeared through the trees. The girl cried aloud in a panic of terror and gripped my arm.

"Don't be alarmed, Julia, dear," I said. "See who it is!"

Old Put walked up to me, gave his glad, familiar whinny and rubbed his nose on my disengaged arm. Then he started back, and his eyes flamed with wrath.

"Don't be angry, old comrade," I said. "It is true I wear a red coat, but it is only a disguise, a ruse, and I will get rid of it as soon as I can."

He wagged his head as a sign that my apology was sufficient and made no further protest. I slipped the bridle over his head, and the girl broke into a nervous laugh of relief.

"Did you think Old Put would desert a comrade?" I asked.

"Wait here just a moment," I continued. I led Old Put a little distance, and gathering up some dry leaves wiped the stains of his hoofs. Then I returned with him to her and told her to jump upon his back, but the horse shied away from her, showing aversion and anger.

"Never mind, Old Put," I said. "It is all right. She won't beat you again. She likes us both."

"It seems to me that you are rather inclusive in your statements," she said.

"Get up," I said, and, giving her a hand, I assisted her to jump upon the back of Old Put, who had received my explanation with perfect confidence and assumed a protecting air toward her.

"And now once more for Morgan," I said.

"Which, of course, means Tarleton in the end," she said. "And I want to say, Mr. Marcel, that when the rebel army is taken I shall not forget the service that you have done me at a great risk to yourself. My father has influence with Colonel Tarleton, and I shall ask him to secure your good treatment while in captivity."

She spoke with quite an English—that is to say, quite a patronizing—air.

"You are very kind," I said, "but Morgan has not been caught yet, has he, Old Put?"

Women think it their right to abuse a man and receive nothing but chivalry in return.

The old horse shook his head defiantly, and I felt encouraged. We had entered a good country for traveling and at last came into something that was meant evidently for road, but it was very much more resembled a gully washed out by the rains. It led in the right direction, and I followed it, despite my persuasion that we were now in territory practically occupied by the British and were much more likely to meet them in the road than in the fields or forest. But I was tired of such difficult traveling, and, being extremely anxious to rejoin Morgan, I chose the course which promised the best speed.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

Moved more by impulse and instinct than by thought, I snatched out my own pistol and fired at the head in the window. The man uttered a deep sigh; the body dropped forward, and swayed there; I heard the light drip, drip of something on the floor, and then the body fell inside the room.

The girl, suddenly awakened by the terrible sounds and half in a maze, cried out in fright and then began to ask in a high, trembling voice what had happened.

"The British have attacked us," I said. "One of them was in the shadow, and I threw him back. Stand out of the range of the window." I did not want her to see the thing lying on the floor under the window, and I shoved the table in front of it.

She obeyed, for I spoke the last sentence very sharply. The window was wide open, and expecting to see another face there I held my second pistol ready, but none appeared, and I had no doubt that they feared Crowder was dead.

Taking the risk, I reached out an arm, seized the shutter and slammed it shut, securing it as best I could with the leather strap and nail used as a fastening. Then, with my ear near the crevice, I listened, but could not hear our enemies. I feared at first to look out lest I should receive a bullet, but still hearing nothing I applied my eye and saw that the men had gone back to their fire. They were all there—four. I counted them and knew that none was missing. They were deliberating evidently over the fall of their leader and what next to do, and I took an immediate resolution.

"Light the candle," I said to the girl. "Hold it to the fire. There's enough heat left to start the wick to burning."

She did so and saw that something lay behind the table.

"What is that?" she cried.

"The dancer and singer of last night," I replied, seeing that I would have to tell. "The leader of those desperadoes outside came into our fort, but he came into his grave."

She retreated, shuddering, to the farthest corner of the room.

"Now, you do exactly as I say," I continued. "Remember that you are the rank and file of this army, and I am its commander."

"I will obey you," she said.

I quickly reloaded my pistol. Then I shoved the table away again and, overcoming my repulsion, dragged the dead body to a sitting position. A chill struck into my marrow, but I dragged off the red British coat, and having thrown off my own, put it on. Then I gathered up the wallet of food and Old Tom's bridle and took down the bar from the door.

"Come," I said; "we are going to leave this place while they are planning by the fire and their backs are turned to us."

It was a bold measure, involving many risks, but I believed that it would succeed if we kept our courage and presence of mind. For at least two or three minutes they would think I was Crowder, victorious, and that would be worth much. When I had taken down the bar, I stopped a moment.

"Keep by my side," I said. "Remember that we must become separated by chance. Here, take this pistol! You can shoot, can't you?"

She said "Yes" and took the pistol. Then I opened the door, and we dashed out, running with quick and noiseless steps across the open toward the wood, which rose in a dim line ahead of us.

While the window opened toward the campfire of the besiegers the door did not, and we had gone perhaps 50 yards before they saw us. This I knew by the surprised shout that came to us, and looking back I saw them hesitating, as if in doubt about my identity, and at last running toward their horses. I was glad that they would pursue on horseback, and I had taken that probability into consideration when we made our dash from the house, for even at the distance I could see that the dim wood looked dense and a poor place for the use of horses.

"Courage, Julia!" I said, taking her hand. "In a minute or two we will be into the woods, and they mean safety."

I looked back a second time. The guerrillas had reached their horses, mounted them and turned their heads our way, but in doing it their time lost was our gain. "It is very dark here, and there is still danger that we might become separated. I think I will let you hold it a little longer, but I shall endure it merely because it is a military necessity."

She gave her hand a most violent jerk, and it nearly slipped from me, but I renewed my grip in time.

"Simply a military necessity," I repeated, and, seeing that it was useless, she made no further effort to withdraw her hand. I could not see her face, the darkness being too great, and therefore had little opportunity to judge of her state of mind. We walked on in silence, winding here and there through the wood, with an occasional stop to listen, though we heard nothing but the common noises of a forest—the crackling rustle of dry leaves and twigs, the gentle swaying of some old trees as the wind rocked it and the soft swish of the bushes as they swung back into place after we had passed between.

CHAPTER VIII.
JULIA'S REVENGE.

We walked for nearly an hour and during the last three-quarters of it kept straight to the northwest, in which direction I thought Morgan, with his little army, lay, or rather marched. At last the bush began to grow thinner and the trees to stand farther apart. I inferred that we were approaching the end of the forest, and I was not sorry, as the traveling was hard, and I believed that we had lost our pursuers. Presently we came into the open, and I let the girl's hand drop.

"Which way are we going now?" she asked.

"Wait a moment," I said. "Remember that we must become separated by chance. Here, take this pistol! You can shoot, can't you?"

She said "Yes" and took the pistol. Then I opened the door, and we dashed out, running with quick and noiseless steps across the open toward the wood, which rose in a dim line ahead of us.

BIG DAY FOR Y. M. C. A.

Sunday, When Ministerial Delegates Are to Preach In Boston Pulpits.

MESSAGE FROM EDWARD THE VII

Was Followed by the Singing of a Great English Anthem, the Entire Audience Standing—Delegate Tried to Spring Darwinian Theory.

Boston, June 15.—To the ministerial delegates at the international Y. M. C. A. convention there came notices of assignments to Boston pulpits for Sunday, and that will be the day when the work of the Y. M. C. A. will be brought to the attention of the greatest number of people.

Among the section meetings the most striking incident occurred at that held in the First Baptist church.

Here Christianity and evolution came into clash through a paper read by Dr. Winfield S. Hall, of Chicago, on "Modern Tendencies in the Development of the Race." He discussed the racial development on the lines of the Darwinian theory. It caused discussion.

The chief interest in the general meeting was the attack on the business methods of the Y. M. C. A. by Rev. Dr. Canfield, of New York.

Last evening a message from King Edward VII was followed by the singing of "God Save the King," the entire audience standing.

NO UNITED STATES ENVOY.

Rumor From Rome of One Being Sent to Vatican Denied by State Department.

Washington, June 15.—A dispatch from Rome intimates that Cardinal Rampolla may take advantage of the ecclesiastical situation in the Philippines to compel President McKinley to send a diplomatic envoy to the vatican.

At the state department this is said to be impossible, as this nation does not recognize any ecclesiastical authority.

A serious objection to sending an envoy to the pope is that it would be an expression of opinion as to the claim of temporal power on the part of the head of the Catholic church. The claim has been controverted by Italy, and any action by the United States tending to recognize such claim would doubtless lead to the severance of diplomatic relations. This point is understood by the leaders of the church in America, such as Cardinal Gibbons, who explained the matter during his visit to Rome.

MRS. WALTERS ELECTED.

Missionary Union of Reformed Presbyterian Church Selects Officers.

Cincinnati, June 15.—At a session of the general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church addresses were delivered by Thomas Biggerstaff, of Pittsburgh, on Sabbath observance, and by Dr. David Steele, as the representatives of the western section of the alliance of the reform churches.

An enthusiastic reception was tendered Rev. J. Sanderson, of Cedarville, as a fraternal delegate from a branch of the Reformed Presbyterian church.

The response by Moderator Brownell joined in the hope that all the Reformed Presbyterians would be some united again.

At the meeting of the Women's Missionary union Miss Mary Murdock, Cedarville, O., was elected president; first vice president, Mrs. Thomas Walters, Pittsburgh; treasurer, Mrs. William Black, Pittsburgh.

BRITISH CENSUS STATISTICS.

Inhabitants of Five Cities Outside of London—Some Other Figures.

London, June 15.—A preliminary census volume gives the population of the five largest cities of England, exclusive of London, as follows:

Liverpool, 584,947; Manchester, 543,969; Birmingham, 522,182; Leeds, 53,952; Sheffield, 380,717.

The total number of males in England and Wales is 15,721,728; of females, 16,804,347, men serving abroad in the army, navy and merchant marine being excluded.

Seventy-seven per cent of the total population is in the cities and 23 per cent is in rural districts, as against 30 and 25 per cent respectively in 1891.

MAY ACCEPT BRITISH PROPOSAL.

Some Minor Indemnity Propositions Made by Rockhill.

Paris, June 15.—Dispatches received here from Pekin said the foreign ministers were considering fresh propositions from Mr. Rockhill affecting the Chinese concessions looking to the payment of the indemnity. The propositions concern minor matters and may or may not be accepted, but until they are disposed of the ministers will not pronounce a decision as to the manner in which China is to pay the powers, though it is virtually settled that the British proposal will be accepted.

AN ELECTRIC-CHARGED FENCE.

Coal Company So Protects Non-Unionists, Though Strikers Are Peaceful—More Families Evicted.

Williamsport, June 15.—Notwithstanding the assurance from the State Line and Sullivan Coal company that there would be no more evictions of miners' families at Bernice, Sullivan county, two more families were forced to move out of company houses on Wednesday.

The company has resorted to a vigorous method to prevent the men from reaching the pump station where the non-union workmen are employed. A seven-strand barb wire fence has been built about the pump house and dynamo plant, and these wires are heavily charged with electricity. On the fence are placed "danger" signals notifying the public to keep away from the fence. The fence is about seven feet high.

In addition to the fence several deputy sheriffs are employed. Sheriff Osler tried to get deputies from Laporte, but in this was unsuccessful. He obtained two at Sonestown.

The miners are peaceable, not the slightest indication of violence being shown. It is feared that evictions will become general, however, for there are at least 120 families who are yet occupying company houses.

BIDDLE WAS FOUND GUILTY.

First Degree Verdict Returned by Jury in Kahney Case—Prisoner Much Affected.

Pittsburgh, June 15.—John D. Biddle was found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing Grocer Thomas Donnelly Kahney, of Mt. Washington, April 12 last.

After the usual preliminaries, Foreman Archibald Ritchey pulled the indictment from a pocket and read: "We find the defendant, John Biddle, alias John Wright, guilty of murder in the first degree."

The awful words struck Biddle with terrible force and caused him to nearly fall into his chair, but he regained his composure with one strong effort and stood until the clerk recorded the verdict. Without any indication from any officer Biddle fell right back into his chair. He kept his head erect, however, in the strenuous effort to maintain composure.

Later Crier Patterson took his arm and led him back of the bench toward the door leading to the bridge of sighs. The jury took three ballots.

A WOMAN ROBBED.

Thieves Then Fired House and Tried to Prevent Her Escape.

Neighbors Armed.

Pittsburgh, June 15.—Four men shadowed Mrs. Sadie Fowler, of Covendale street, Thirty-fifth ward, for about five hours Thursday, and about 2 o'clock Friday morning beat her into insensibility, robbed her and burned down her home. When she tried to escape from the burning building the men held the doors, but the arrival of neighbors saved her from being suffocated. The robbers escaped.

The house was burned to the ground. The loss is placed at $3,000, while Mrs. Fowler's loss from the fire will be in the neighborhood of $600. There was no insurance on the furniture, but S. C. Cover, owner of the house, had it fully insured.

Mrs. Fowler is a widow, and has a large interest in the oil wells in this state and in West Virginia. She told the story of the robbery to the neighbors. She was not injured by the fire, but the blow on her head troubled her. Mrs. Fowler is 35 years of age and is a professional nurse.

The money the robbers secured amounted to $52.

BLONDIN MET NO WOMAN.

Expressman Found Who Moved Suspected Wife Murderer's Trunk.

Boston, June 15.—The belief that Mrs. Margaret Blondin was murdered in her room at 43 Green street on the evening of April 27 is gaining ground in police circles in this city. The expressman who took the Blondin trunk away from the boarding house on Green street was William Dean. Dean remembered the incident, as it was raining hard and as the man who engaged him rode with him.

Dean said he saw a check placed on the trunk before he left. Blondin had a ticket for Montreal. Blondin met no woman at the station. The baggage checker at the station corroborates Dean's story.

Special Officer Chapman also found the expressman who called for Blondin's trunk at the latter's lodgings on Howard street last Wednesday. He took it to the South Union station. The expressman told the police official that he checked the trunk to Springfield.

Boston, June 15.—To the ministerial delegates at the international Y. M. C. A. convention there came notices of assignments to Boston pulpits for Sunday, and that will be the day when the work of the Y. M. C. A. will be brought to the attention of the greatest number of people.

The Bigness of the Ocean.

Some people gratefully reflect that we owe the clouds and the tides and the winds to the "Mother and Maker of men," but these are less numerous than the folks who "would like to know" what we should do for soles and cod and mackerel if there were no ocean. Yet think only how big it is! If you divide the whole globe's area into 11 parts, the sea covers eight of those, with an average depth of 2,000 fathoms. Try to imagine 12,000 feet of solid, perpendicular sea water lying upon eight-elevenths of the entire planet!

A patient mathematician has been at the pains to inform us that this bulk of brine would weigh one and a half million million millions of tons. For the most part this vast body of water—thus set down in figures as 1,500,000,000,000,000 tons—is of the same composition everywhere, and as every body knows, carries great quantities of ocean salt.

But that same salt is itself singularly complex. Not only are there in it chlorides and sulphates of sodium, potash, magnesium and lime, which are familiar to many, but it contains also silica, boron, bromide, iodine, fluorine acid and the oxides of nickel, cobalt, manganese, zinc, silver, lead, copper, aluminium, barium and strontium. Arsenic and gold are also found in it, along with those rare metals lithium, rubidium and caesium.—London Telegraph.

Some people gratefully reflect that we owe the clouds and the tides and the winds to the "Mother and Maker of men," but these are less numerous than the folks who "would like to know" what we should do for soles and cod and mackerel if there were no ocean. Yet think only how big it is! If you divide the whole globe's area into 11 parts, the sea covers eight of those, with an average depth of 2,000 fathoms. Try to imagine 12,000 feet of solid, perpendicular sea water lying upon eight-elevenths of the entire planet!

A patient mathematician has been at the pains to inform us that this bulk of brine would weigh one and a half million million millions of tons. For the most part this vast body of water—thus set down in figures as 1,500,000,000,000,000 tons—is of the same composition everywhere, and as everybody knows, carries great quantities of ocean salt.

But that same salt is itself singularly complex. Not only are there in it chlorides and sulphates of sodium, potash, magnesium and lime, which are familiar to many, but it contains also silica, boron, bromide, iodine, fluorite acid and the oxides of nickel, cobalt, manganese, zinc, silver, lead, copper, aluminium, barium and strontium. Arsenic and gold are also found in it, along with those rare metals lithium, rubidium and caesium.—London Telegraph.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

17TH YEAR. NO. 313.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1901.

TWO CENTS

GOOD ROUND SUM OFFERED FOR HOTEL SITE IN CITY

John Kernohan, a Prominent Pittsburgher, Trying to Make a Deal.

AN OFFER OF $40,000 MADE

for the Isaac Knowles Property, at Washington and Fifth Streets.

OTHER SITES CONTEMPLATED

among them being the Syndicate Block and the Watson and Walsh Properties — A Strictly Modern Hotel Sure to Be Built.

John Kernohan, of Pittsburgh, erstwhile proprietor of the St. James hotel of that city, is in East Liverpool. His mission here, it is believed, will terminate in an important deal by which one of the finest hotels in this section of the country will be erected.

Mr. Kernohan, through a prominent real estate dealer, made an offer of $40,000 today for the Isaac Knowles property, at the corner of Sixth and Washington, though the position has not as yet been made known to the owner of the property.

In addition to this Mr. Kenohan is negotiating for the purchase of the Syndicate block on Sixth street, though it is not known that he has as yet made an offer for the same.

The Watson and Walsh properties on Sixth street are also being considered and are looked upon with favor. The real estate dealer interested in Mr. Kernohan's scheme holds negotiations on the two properties last week, but it is not probable they will be purchased if either of the others can be secured. The Knowles property is the most favored, but it is said its owner will probably demand a much higher price than that asked.

It is the intention of the Pittsburgher to erect a strictly modern hotel. Plans as already made out will necessitate the purchase of considerable acreage, as in addition to the land he proposes building two more large store rooms. He has some time been figuring on his present scheme, and it comes from authority that before Mr. Kenohan leaves the city he will possibly have closed a deal for a hotel.

Every effort has been made to keep the matter quiet, but the details as given were learned by a reporter this afternoon.

COAL LAND SOLD

H. Norris Becomes the Owner of 1,000 Acres in Yellow Creek Township.

A big deal has been consummated which Rev. J. H. Norris, of Pittsburgh, becomes the possessor of 1,000 acres of land in Yellow Creek township. In some instances he bought the coal under the farms and in other cases he bought the farm surface and all.

The purchases include the farms of Mr. Morris, the Morris farm, the Conner farm and the farm formerly owned by William Anderson, lately owned by William Dennis. The land extends from the road near the creek school house down to Albion. It is said that operations will be put under headway in the very near future for the mining of the coal in the territory bought.

EAST END CAME NEAR DROWNING

STRUCK HIS HEAD ON A STONE WHILE DIVING.

John Patterson Had a Close Call While Swimming in the River.

John Patterson came near being drowned while swimming in the river near the old Hague place last evening. He dived off a springing board, striking his head on a stone at the bottom. When he came up he was badly strangled and was assisted to the shore by his companions.

He did not strike the stone hard enough to inflict any serious injury, and was all right as soon as he got over his struggle.

TAGALO WOMEN

HE comeliest women of Luzon and the adjacent islands are the Tagalos. That perhaps is not saying much; still it is something. The aborigines and the other wild peoples of the Philippines are among the most unpleasing of mankind in appearance.

The women of the Tagalo race, besides being the best looking, are also the most highly civilized and the least oppressed of their sex among the native races of the Philippines. They have seen more white women than have their native sisters of other races and have profited by it.

Tagalo women seldom go out to domestic service except as nurses. Men are the house servants. But women and girls work in the tobacco factories. Nearly all the cigar and cigarette making is done by them. In some cases the Tagalo man stays at home and minds the children and does the house work while his wife earns the living in the factory. For some reason women seem to be preferred to men in tobacco manufacture.

In one industrial art Tagalo women are really gifted, and that is embroidery. I never noticed that they could do anything else particularly well, but in art work with the needle they are equal to Japanese. You may, for instance, direct a Tagalo woman to make a monogram or a set of initial letters. You give her the pattern. She looks at it, sets it before her and begins. Without a measurement, without putting in a stitch to guide her, without a touch of a stamp, she merely follows the pattern with her eye while she works, and under her hand meantime forms itself the exact reproduction of the model.

GREAT DAMAGE

WROUGHT BY STORM AT HOLLOW ROCK CAMP GROUND.

Nineteen Cottages Washed From Foundations—Cattle and Horses Drowned—Valley Flooded.

Wesley Taylor, who lives just above the Hollow Rock camp ground, and who is a trustee of the Campmeeting association, was in town yesterday. He reported that a great deal of damage was done to the cottages and fences by Tuesday's cloud burst.

Nineteen cottages situated along the road were washed from their foundations. The fences were washed away and all the seats were washed out.

The water was ten feet deep in the valley. It was up above the window sills at the Hollow Rock school house. Several head of cattle were drowned. Three horses belonging to James Runyon, who lives above the camp ground were washed down into the circle of cottages. Two of them escaped, but the third was drowned.

A meeting of the association was held today to decide whether repairs could be made in time for campmeeting which was scheduled for the latter part of August.

RINGLING BROS.' CIRCUS.

Tears

Many a woman has periodic crying spells. She meets her husband with eyes red and swollen and he cries out: "What has happened?" "Nothing," his wife replies. "I don't know what is the matter with me, but I just had to have a good cry." Men don't have crying spells. It would seem therefore that an affection confined to women must have its cause in the womanly nature. There is no doubt that a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organs, is in general responsible for feminine nervousness and hysteria.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes women happy by making them healthy. There are no more crying spells. "Favorite Prescription" cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

There is no medicine "just as good."

Accept no substitute.

"For three years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Sasser, of High, Lamar Co., Texas, "I suffered with falling of the womb, also ulceration of the womb. After using three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' four of 'Golden Medicine Discovery' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' I found relief. I am able to do my work with ease. I recommend your wonderful medicine to all my friends for I truly believe it saved my life."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Cloth binding 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BIG HOTEL BURNED.

Over 200 Guests Escaped, Most Of Them In Night
Attire.

DEPARTED IN VARIEGATED CARS.

Some Women Dressed In Combinations of Men and Women's Clothes.
Employees Escaped—Electric Lights
Went Out—Guests in Darkness.

West Baden, Ind., June 15.—Of the 268 persons who were in the Mineral Springs hotel fire here, it is now believed that every one escaped with his life. Mr. Sinclair, the proprietor, has been busy checking off the names, but the accuracy of his work is handicapped by the fact that all the records and papers, including the hotel register, were lost. Many of the guests left for their homes in various parts of the country, the most prominent going to Chicago, Louisville and Indianapolis. The rest are at French Lick. The loss on the hotel building is estimated at $250,000, with insurance aggregating $110,000. In addition to this the loss in diamonds, jewelry and clothing belonging to the guests, it is estimated, will reach $50,000.

Many that left on the train were dressed in odd pieces of clothing, picked up from many sources.

Watchman Failed to Quench Fire.

The conflagration had its origin in the kitchen. The night watchman attempted to extinguish the blaze with hand grenades, but seeing his attempts were in vain he rushed to the office, notifying the night clerk, and together they ran rapidly through the halls, bursting open doors and yelling "fire." It was but a few moments after the discovery of the fire that the electric light circuit was burned out, and the panic-stricken guests groped around in their rooms for wearing apparel and other personal property. Out of the 268 guests who had registered at the hotel the evening before, only 12 succeeded in escaping from the burning building with all their personal property.

Amy Leslie, the theatrical critic of a Chicago paper, who has been at the hotel with her niece for the past about two weeks, escaped with nothing but her night robes. Miss Leslie's traveling wardrobe consisted of a night robe, a gentleman's shirt, which she purchased at the village store, and her bath robe. Her little niece was provided for by an old colored woman, who furnished her with one of her little daughter's dresses.

Miss Sinclair, daughter of one of the proprietors of the hotel, had a very narrow escape, losing all her wearing apparel, diamonds and other personal property.

Fifty or sixty female employees of the hotel, who were quartered in the rooms on the upper floor of the new bath house, which has just been completed at a cost of $70,000, escaped uninjured. This building, with the hotel, was also destroyed.

In about half an hour after the fire was discovered much of the building was ablaze. The building was provided with fire escapes, and on the front of the building, extending from the ground to the roof, was an escape built in a spiral fashion. It was through this that many of the guests got out.

Many Had Narrow Escapes.

Colonel Howard, general agent of a life insurance company of New York, barely escaped in his night clothing. Many others had narrow escapes.

The massive fireproof safe in the office contained $10,000 in cash, which the guests had deposited for safe keeping. The safe is in the cellar, completely covered with the burning debris, and it will not be known for several days whether the valuables therein are safe.

The officials of the Monon railroad had been notified of their destitute condition, their tickets and money having been destroyed, and it was but a short time before a message was received from the general superintendent, inviting all to proceed to Chicago or any other point of their line free of charge.

After the fire women, dressed in their night robes, men's overcoats, hats and shoes, mingled in the crowd, congratulating each other on their narrow escapes.

The guests, or those of them who saved enough money, soon cleaned out the stock of the little country store. Women purchased men's sweaters, shirts and other articles of clothing.

ALTOONA PUBLIC BUILDING.

Corner Stone of New Postoffice Laid In That City.

Altoona, Pa., June 15.—The laying of the corner stone of the new United States court house and postoffice building occurred here. The ceremonies were in charge of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Pennsylvania. Mayor E. F. Giles, chairman of the citizens' executive committee, delivered a brief address, which was followed by an invocation, Rev. A. S. Woodle, Ex-Congressman J. D. Hicks spoke.

The solemn rites of the Masonic order in laying the corner stone and placing the contents of the receptacle were carefully performed. General George E. Warner, of Philadelphia, the grand master, and his staff officiating. At the conclusion of the Masonic ceremonies Rev. Dr. D. S. Monroe of Shamokin, the secretary of the Central Pennsylvania conference, delivered the oration of the occasion.

The citizens of Belmont county, O., have organized to celebrate the centennial of the county in September. It will likely be held at Shadyside, the first county seat.

The Ohio River railroad station at Sistersville was robbed by masked men who compelled C. M. Anderson, the night operator, to open the safe. The robbers got only $27.

Charles A. Dyer, a machinist, of Cadiz, was found aimlessly walking the streets of Akron, having entirely lost his memory. He wept like a child and asked for his wife. He did not know his name or residence.

FEMALE FIGHTERS

Entertain the Residents of Jethro By Engaging in Hair Pulling.

Two young women of Jethro entertained the inhabitants of that quaint old village last evening by a hair-pulling performance over a young man from the city proper who had evidently been keeping company with both girls. Of course nobody interfered and after the pair had tired of their amusement they decided to call the bout a draw and quit.

A resident of that vicinity states that this is no uncommon occurrence, and that if the girls don't fight the boys do, or their mothers take it up, and so there is always plenty of amusement going on, the people up in the city know nothing about it.

Itching Scalp.

Scald Head and the Most Violent Forms of Eczema and Salt Rheum Promptly and Thoroughly Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Among small children, scald head and similar itching skin diseases are most prevalent, and the worst feature is that these ailments, which are apparently trivial at first, almost invariably develop into chronic eczema if neglected.

There is but one treatment that physicians are unanimous in recommending for scald heads and eczema, and that is Dr. Chase's Ointment, the great antiseptic healer. It promptly stops the distressing itching which accompanies these diseases and positively produces a thorough and complete cure.

Scores and thousands of men and women stand ready to vouch for the merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has brought about some of the most marvelous cures ever recorded. In justice to yourself and family, you cannot do without it in your home.

Mr. J. H. Grant, 716 Joseph Campan ave., Detroit, Mich., writes:

"For three years I have been troubled by an intense itching on my body. So terrible was it at times that I could get no rest night or day. I tried all kinds of ointments and body purifiers, but could get no relief. Mr. H. A. Nicolai of 379 Division street recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. A few applications stopped the itching and I have felt nothing since."

Baby Eczema.

Mr. F. S. Rose of 133 Sixteenth street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"Our baby boy suffered for some time with that wretched eczema, and we were unable to find anything to cure or even relieve his pain. A few applications of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment stopped the itching and healed the sores, and bright, natural skin now takes their place."

Dr. Chase's Ointment does not cause pain when applied, but soothes the sore or inflamed surface, 50 cents at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Sold in East Liverpool by Charles T. Larkins.

The Earl and the Highwayman.

One night when the Earl of Stanhope was walking alone in the Kentish lanes a man jumped out of the hedge, leveled a pistol and demanded his purse.

"My good man, I have no money with me," said Lord Stanhope in his remarkably slow tones. The robber laid hands on his watch.

"No," Lord Stanhope went on, "that watch you must not have. It was given to me by one I love. It is worth £100. If you will trust me, I will go back to Chevening and bring a £100 note and place it in the hollow of that tree. I cannot lose my watch."

The man did trust him. The earl did bring the note. Years after Lord Stanhope was at a city dinner, and next to him sat a London alderman of great wealth, a man widely respected. He and the earl talked of many things and found each other mutually entertaining. Next day Lord Stanhope received a letter, out of which dropped a £100 note. "It was your lordship's kind loan of this sum," said the note, "that started me in life and enabled me to have the honor of sitting next to your lordship at dinner." A strange story; but the Stanhopes are a strange race, and things happen to them that never did or could occur to other people.

To Be Cheerful.

The sovereign, voluntary path to cheerfulness, if our spontaneous cheerfulness be lost, is to sit up cheerfully, to look around cheerfully and to act and speak as if cheerfulness were already there. If such conduct doesn't make you soon feel cheerful, nothing else will on that occasion. So, to feel brave, act as if we were brave, use all our will to that end, and courage fit will very likely replace the fit of fear. Again, in order to feel kindly toward a person to whom we have been injurious, the only way is more or less deliberately to smile, to make sympathetic inquiries and to force ourselves to say gentle things. One hearty laugh together will bring enemies into closer communion of heart than hours spent on both sides in inward wrestling with the mental demon of uncharitable feeling.

AN UNPREJUDICED OBSERVER.

Frederic Harrison, a distinguished Englishman, has written an article on "Impressions of America." His impressions appear to have been gained from careful observation and personal acquaintance with the subject discussed. He remarks on the lack of a leisure class and on various differences between the way in which money is spent here and the way in which it is spent abroad, "but," he adds, "I saw nothing to suggest that wealth in America is worse acquired or worse applied than it is in Europe."

Speaking of the riches of the whole nation he says that "no competent observer can doubt that in wealth, manufactures and material progress of all kinds, the United States, in a very few years, must hold the first place in the world without dispute." Moreover, its population will have an education "second only to that of Germany and Switzerland and superior to that of any other European nation." If in art, literature and science we have produced little as yet that is superlatively fine, the diffusion of culture is extraordinary.

We may profess indifference to what foreigners think or say of us, but the truth is that we are not indifferent. It is so rare that the visitor from abroad who comes here and goes home and writes about us looks at us with unprejudiced eyes that the sound judgment and reasonable fairness displayed by Mr. Harrison makes his contribution a welcome addition to a kind of literature which is seldom either interesting or important.

BOOMING FORAKER.

The New York Sun, commenting on the smashing of the third term scheme, says it will not review the candidates which this act of the president brings to the front. It does, however, mention a considerable number of them, including Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana; Wm. B. Allison and Governor Shaw, of Iowa; Wm. P. Frye, of Maine, and Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. The Sun then remarks: "But when it comes to serious comparison of one possibility with another it should not be forgotten that there remains a citizen in that modern nest of presidents, Ohio, who possesses in no ordinary degree the qualities that in this country make the powerful candidate and the successful executive. We refer to the Hon. Joseph Benson Foraker."

If a statesman should be sought having the Hon. James G. Blaine's force, his fire, his experience, his unbound view of things, his partisanship, and, above all, his identification in spirit and political quality with the people of America, we incline to think that the choice would end in Senator Foraker. He is as old or as young as it is well to be, being in the first youth of maturity. He is a man whom the country with its vast interests in industry and commerce need have no fear of; and with an American such as he in the White House, one would need to have no fear for the country. While the American farm yard would prosper in security, the American eagle would not live in terror lest it should have to hide its head."

HAILED AS A HERO.

The Georgia sheriff who defied a mob and prevented a lynching is hailed by the southern press as a hero. His conduct is extolled in glowing terms, as if it were something unusual for a sworn officer of the law to do his duty. The world is pretty well aware that it is unusual, where "prominent citizens" by the hundred are bent on taking the life of some helpless and friendless wretch. Bravery is a quality for which the men of the south used to be famed. Bravery in the line of duty is heroism, but it ought not to be so unusual in the south or elsewhere as to attract marked attention. More sheriffs of the type of this Georgian are one of the chief wants in the lynching belt.

Although the average western farmer nearly goes into spasms when the word trust is mentioned, a western man is advocating the formation of a corn and wheat growers' trust. A great scheme, certainly; but how does the promoter promise to centralize the millions of "plants" to be included?

The board of trade should not be suffered to die of inanition. A little earnest work would put it on its feet. Shall it be said that public spirit and enterprise are dead in East Liverpool?

That East Liverpool did not observe flag day is no indication that East Liverpool does not honor the flag.

The wheat crop, like the pig iron crop, promises to be enormous this year.

Rural free delivery are multiplying in Ohio. This means more good roads.

OBITUARY.

Clinton Halstead.

After an illness of two years with consumption, Clinton Halstead, residing on May street in the West End, died this morning at 4:30 o'clock. For the past several weeks the afflicted man had been confined to his bed and his death was anticipated long before it did occur. A few months since Mr. Halstead was sent to Florida by the local order of Maccabees, of which he was a member, in the hope that it would be beneficial to his health. He received no relief, however, and since his return had been practically helpless.

Mr. Halstead is survived by a wife and three children, the latter being Ernest, Virgil and Cecil. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the First M. E. church. The Maccabees will attend.

The Mutilated Bill Swindle.

The antiquity of a swindle rarely interferes with its success if it be skillfully managed, else one confidence game that has recently been played here profitably would never have been revived. It depends on the practice of the United States government in redeeming any part of a torn bill for the amount of money it represents. The value of a part of a bill is very exactly determined by means of an apparatus which measures the fragment of the bill with the greatest accuracy. This mechanism prevents anybody from getting in return for part of a torn bill any more than it is really worth.

That fact is not generally known, and it is the ignorance of the public in the matter that has lately made possible the success of a well dressed swindler who has been operating downtown. He has with him parts of a $10 bill bearing the bill number. He explains to waiters, barkeepers, cashiers and similar persons that he is too busy to go to the treasury and redeem the bill for which he could secure the full value. He offers for that reason to dispose of the torn piece for a small sum and has succeeded in getting from $5 to $7 for fragments of a bill that could never be redeemed for more than half those sums.

The purchasers, of course, had confidence in the mistaken theory that the full value of a bill would be paid at the treasury for any part of it, however small the section might be. By dividing a $10 bill into five or six pieces and selling them on such liberal terms this form of swindling may be made very profitable.—New York Sun.

GLEANINGS OF A DAY

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

The slip house man and a mold runner at the East End plant became embroiled in a quarrel yesterday afternoon and finally settled their differences by fighting a fierce duel with nature's weapons. According to an eyewitness blood flowed like water, the principal cause being that each fellow landed on the other's nose in the first round. The bout lasted about 20 minutes, during which time each man received enough punching to partly satisfy his honor. Just who came out ahead is a little uncertain, some of the witnesses claiming that the slip house man came out second best, while others assert that the mold runner got the worst of the bout.

Fred Owens, a dishmaker at the East Liverpool plant, is spending a few days at Mt. Clemens with William Swindells, who is there for his health.

Bert Welsh, who is employed as a sticker-up at the East End plant, is off duty on account of illness. His place is being filled by Daniel Pickals.

Anthony Regan arrived in the city Wednesday from Trenton and has accepted a position as kilnhand at the United States pottery at Wellsville.

The new decorating kiln at Vodrey Bros.' has been completed and was fired for the first time yesterday.

Alice Reed, who is employed at the National, is off duty suffering from an attack of neuralgia.

A jigger for the making of oatmeals only is being erected at the National pottery.

Charles Boulton has accepted a position as finisher at the Thompson plant.

Clarence McKenty has accepted a position as printer at Vodrey Bros.

Miss Mary Williams has accepted a position as liner at Vodrey Bros.

Louis Marsh has accepted a position as mold runner at Harker's.

A Supreme Court Jest.

An eminent lawyer, one of the most eminent in the United States, was in the midst of an argument in defense of the patent rights of his client to a newfangled collar button that was being unlawfully manufactured by the people on the other side of the case. The distinguished counsel was describing the patent referred to and its many advantages when Justice Shiras interrupted him and in a most serious manner observed:

"I should like to ask the learned counsel if his client manufactures a collar button that won't roll under the bed."

Of course the court was shocked. Some young people in the seats reserved for spectators tittered, and the marshal, rapping on his desk with his gavel, roared, "Silence in this honorable court!" The eminent counsel maintained his gravity, although his soul must have been deeply stirred, and had presence of mind enough to turn the incident to his own advantage, saying with emphasis:

"I have the honor to inform the court that the collar button manufactured by my client is unique in that as well as in other respects, but my client would not be so selfish as to patent so important a benefit to mankind."—Chicago Record.

Wrestle With This Problem.

Here is a little genealogical problem which perhaps some of our readers can solve. A man writes to the Liverpool Post, saying: "I have, like the rest of human beings, two parents. They in turn had each two. These four grandparents had each two, and so on. Now, if we take on an average four generations to a century 33 generations have passed away since the time of William the Conqueror, and by the simple process of multiplying two by itself 33 times I find that at the date of the Norman conquest I must have had 8,589,934,582 ancestors of that generation. But this is eight or nine times the total population of the globe at the present day and must be fully 30 or 40 times the total number of human beings living in the eleventh century, so that there must be a fallacy in my calculation somewhere. Can anybody tell me," he asks, "what the fallacy is?"

A Misunderstanding.

"Here! Where are you going?" cried the housekeeper.

"Why, lady," replied Harvard Haskell, "I don't suppose you want me to get my board here permanent."

"None of your impudence! Before I gave you your dinner I asked you if you were ready to go to work at once, and you said 'yes.'"

"My goodness! Did you say 'at once?' I understood you to say 'once.' I thought you were curious about my past."—Philadelphia Press.

Of Two Evils.

"Ruggles, I am sorry to hear you were burned out the other day. Did you lose all your household goods?"

"Yes, but we don't feel so awfully bad over it. Lumpkin. We expected to have to move next week anyway."—Cincinnati Tribune.

WINE OF CARDUI

Cairo, Ky., Sept. 6, 1899.
I take pleasure in writing a few lines in praise of your wonderful medicine, Wine of Cardui. It is the best medicine I ever heard of. I am thirty-six years old and have been sick all my life. I had a dozen doctors, but none of them did me any good. I have taken one bottle of Wine of Cardui and will take another with Black-Draught. I have been married six years and have a baby five years old. I had womb and kidney trouble. My monthly period was so bad that sometimes it came twice a month. I was too sick to do work for a family of three. I was in bed when I got the bottle of Wine of Cardui. Now I am up and can do most of my work. When I was sick I could not sleep at night. I sleep well at night now. A friend of mine advised me to take Black-Draught with Wine of Cardui.

JAPAN IN WINTER.

Colder In Houses of the Rich Man Than In Open Sunshine.

"I suppose that the American people and the Russians are the only western races that really keep warm in winter. Still those who dwell in other countries admit that they have the same ideal by their inefficient effort to attain to it," writes Anna N. Benjamin in Ainslee's.

"The Japanese winter is most trying on account of its continual dampness, but the Japanese are content to remain cold. They make almost no effort to overcome it. The old 'bushido' (chivalrous) idea of the 'samurai' (knights) was that it was effeminate to feel cold, and such is their severe training that they do not really feel it as we do. The wearing of some extra 'kimonos' and the use of a 'hibachi' or brazier, in which are a few tiny sticks of lighted charcoal, are the only concessions to winter weather. With the 'hibachi' they never pretend to heat more than their finger tips, which they hold over the coals. It is used when the house is entirely open.

"The houses, as every one knows, are built of thin, light wood, and the sliding panels which serve for doors and windows have paper panes. They are as apt to be open as closed during the day. When I took my first jinrikisha ride through the streets of Nagasaki, I forgot my own sufferings in sympathy for this unhappy nation, which as surely as the cold cause endured such misery from it. The coolies wear thin blue cotton clothes and are always padding through the mud. The storekeepers sit out in their open booths, and the women go bareheaded about the streets.

In the houses of the rich the still cold behind the closed panels is often more intense than that outside in the sunshine, where the air is stirring. The schools and public buildings are equally frigid.

"It seemed to me that the only warm things in Japan were the babies, who looked like bundles of gayly colored crepe, their round heads covered by knitted caps. They slumber peacefully tucked down their mothers' backs. The attempt to keep warm in winter is not entirely a modern improvement, though it goes with western civilization. The Koreans do it very thoroughly, the Chinese to a certain extent. The Japanese, as a race, continue to scorn it as they always have done, and this is merely one of a hundred examples which prove that the Japanese are still true to their traditions in their daily life and as yet little affected in the ordering of their homes by the ideas adopted from the west."

A Case of Color Blindness.

"Yours is a perplexing case," said the oculist. "You call red purple and refer to nile green as turkey red."

"Yes," replied the visitor, with a contented smile. "I fancy I was born that way."

"It's the most aggravated case of color blindness I have ever encountered in my professional experience."

"That's it. I want you to write me out a statement to that effect. Never mind what the fee is. You see, my wife has a lot of samples she wants matched, and she'll ask me to tackle the job some time next week for certain."

And then the oculist had his suspicions.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mexico's Rainy Season.

What they call the rainy season in Mexico comes only in the form of showers, which fall in the afternoon.

These showers usually occur every day, but sometimes there will be two or three days of perfectly clear weather. There is no steady downpour, however, as in most tropical countries, and in Mexico the rainy season is regarded as the finest season of the year.

And then the oculist had his suspic-

Agricultural Bureau Confirmation of Private Wheat Estimates Helped Business.

New York, June 15.—R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Confirmation by the agricultural bureau of recent private estimates of the wheat crop has given to business a tone of greater confidence. Retail operations, both east and west, are larger, and distribution of merchandise by the wholesale trade is increasing. The labor situation is gradually mending, with the appreciation of the fact, that in some directions manufacturers would be glad of a temporary shut down of works.

Pig iron production on June 1 was at the rate of 314,505 tons weekly, according to statistics compiled by The Iron Age. This is about the anticipated increase for May, and establishes a new high water mark, exceeding the previous record of 13,380 tons. An interesting feature of the situation is the decrease of furnaces in blast to 252, which is 44 less than were actively employed Feb. 1, 1900, when the weekly output was 298,014 tons.

Although new orders for pig iron have been light in recent weeks, actual deliveries on old contracts must have reached a heavy total, for furnace stocks, June 1, were but 407,723 tons, a decrease of 30,565 tons during May.

Conditions in this industry must be satisfactory if material is taken faster than it can be produced, notwithstanding a new record of output each month. Prices are easier.

Bessemer pig showing a loss of about $9 a ton, compared with the quotation in February last year, when the production was near present figures.

This absence of inflation in prices is the best symptom in the market, and precludes the possibility of a collapse like last year's. In finished products there is great activity, owing to the large amount of goods to be delivered July 1.

There is noted especial urgency for immediate shipment by consumers of plates, bars and structural shapes, the activity in building operations showing no diminution.

Wheat declined to a more reasonable level with withdrawal of speculative support.

The government report of the condition of June 1 was chiefly responsible. A crop this year equal to the greatest ever harvested was indicated by the official statement, and as department figures have generally proven below the final yield, there was heavy selling of options, with a fall below 50 cents for cash wheat at this city.

Foreign buying promptly decreased, with the prospect of more satisfactory terms. Notwithstanding somewhat lower quotations for corn, the provision market has developed much strength, and pork products at the west are receiving the attention of speculators to an unusual extent, mess pork rising to $15.75 here.

Failures for the week numbered 179 in the United States, against 162 last year, and 23 in Canada, against 21 last year.

UNION PACIFIC AND ST. PAUL.

Overwhelming Proportion of Dealings Friday In These Stocks

New York, June 15.—An overwhelming proportion of the day's dealings Friday was in Union Pacific and St. Paul, and the scrutiny of the day's transactions will reveal that the strength in the market was largely confined to the same stocks.

Influence of that strength on the general list was considerable during the early part of the day, but it steadily waned.

There were some other upward movements, but these also had little effect upon the general list. But while prices in general refused to respond in sympathy with the points of strength they were not conspicuously affected by the heavy realization that went on all day under cover of the strength of the two market leaders.

In fact, it was not until Union Pacific itself relapsed in the last hour of the trading that the selling made any notable impression on prices.

At that time there were sharp breaks all around, which carried the average level of prices below Thursday night, and the subsequent rallies were insignificant, the market closing heavy under renewed selling.

The extreme rise in St. Paul reached 6½ and in Union Pacific 1¾. Colorado Fuel made another sensational advance of 11 points, with a relapse of 3½, and Tennessee Coal rose 4¾ apparently in sympathy. Rumors continued that these companies were to be taken in by the United States Steel corporation.

There were also movements in other stocks. The jump in the call loan rate to 4½ per cent late in the day and the unexpected announcement of an engagement of $500,000 in gold for shipment to Germany, which, however, it subsequently appeared, is not to go out today, were influences in the selling movement.

The bond market was irregular in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, par value, $6,240,000.

U. S. 3s, registered, declined ¼ per cent on the last call.

MARKSMEN WERE DESERTERS.

Heavy Loss of Officers in the Skirmish at Lipa Explained.

Manila, June 15.—The recent battle with the insurgents at Lipa, in which Lieutenant Springer was killed and Captain Wilhelm and Lieutenant Lee were mortally wounded, was begun by the Americans.

The disproportionate number of officers hit is said to be chargeable to the fact that there were several deserters from the American army to the rebels.

Trolley Bills Advanced.

Harrisburg, June 15.—A short session of the house was held Friday, at which a large number of appropriation bills passed first and second reading.

The Focht and Scott supplemental bills to the rapid transit laws passed first reading. A resolution reported from the rules committee and adopted, making bills on second reading the order of business for Monday night's session. Under this order the bills will be taken up for second reading.

Moon Worship In China.

The fete of the moon is celebrated in the eighth month of the year, and this lasts six days. Presents are then made on which the figure of the moon is ap- parent, and a large pagoda is illuminated. Firecrackers and music and family reunions prevail. A midnight banquet on the last night terminates the feast, and then the descent of the goddess of the moon, which we call the man in the moon, is awaited. She is supposed to visit the earth at this time to grant the wishes of mortals. The moon with the Chinese is the patroness of poetry, and autumn is the poet's favorite season.—Leslie's Weekly.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

Moved more by impulse and instinct than by thought, I snatched out my own pistol and fired at the head in the window. The man uttered a deep sigh; the body dropped forward and swayed there; I heard the light drip drop of something on the floor, and then the body fell inside the room.

The girl, suddenly awakened by the terrible sounds and half in a maze, cried out in fright and then began to ask in a high, trembling voice what had happened.

"The British have attacked us," I said. "One of them was in the shadow, and I threw him back. Stand out of the range of the window." I did not want her to see the thing lying on the floor under the window, and I shoved the table in front of it.

She obeyed, for I spoke the last sentence very sharply. The window was wide open, and expecting to see another face there I held my second pistol ready, but none appeared, and I had no doubt that they feared Crowder was dead.

Taking the risk, I reached out an arm, seized the shutter and slammed it shut, securing it as best I could with the leather strap and nail used as a fastening. Then, with my ear near the crevice, I listened, but could not hear our enemies. I feared at first to look out lest I should receive a bullet, but still hearing nothing I applied my eye and saw that the men had gone back to their fire. They were all there—four. I counted them and knew that none was missing. They were deliberating evidently over the fall of their leader and what next to do, and I took an immediate resolution.

"Light the candle," I said to the girl. "Hold it to the fire. There's enough heat left to start the wick to burning."

She did so and saw that something lay behind the table.

"What is that?" she cried.

"The dancer and singer of last night," I replied, seeing that I would have to tell. "The leader of those desperadoes outside came into our fort, but he came into his grave."

She retreated, shuddering, to the farthest corner of the room.

"Now, you do exactly as I say," I continued. "Remember that you are the rank and file of this army, and I am its commander."

"I will obey you," she said.

I quickly reloaded my pistol.

Then I shoved the table away again and, overcoming my repulsion, dragged the dead body to a sitting position. A chill struck into my marrow, but I dragged off the red British coat and, having thrown off my own, put it on. Then I gathered up the wallet of food and Old Tom's bridle and took down the bar from the door.

"Come," I said; "we are going to leave this place while they are planning by the fire and their backs are turned to us."

It was a bold measure, involving many risks, but I believed that it would succeed if we kept our courage and presence of mind. For at least two or three minutes they would think I was Crowder, victorious, and that would be worth much. When I had taken down the bar, I stopped a moment.

"Keep by my side," I said. "Remember that we must become separated by chance. Here, take this pistol! You can shoot, can't you?"

She said "Yes" and took the pistol. Then I opened the door, and we dashed out, running with quick and noiseless steps across the open toward the wood, which rose in a dim line ahead of us.

While the window opened toward the campfire of the besiegers the door did not, and we had gone perhaps 50 yards before they saw us. This I knew by the surprised shout that came to us, and looking back I saw them hesitating, as if in doubt about my identity, and at last running toward their horses. I was glad that they would pursue on horseback, and I had taken that probability into consideration when we made our dash from the house, for even at the distance I could see that the dim wood looked dense and a poor place for the use of horses.

"Courage, Julia!" I said, taking her hand. "In a minute or two we will be into the woods, and they mean safety."

I looked back a second time. The guerrillas had reached their horses, mounted them and turned their heads our way, but in doing it their time lost was our gain. Unless lamed by some unlucky pistol shot we would surely gain the wood. They fired once or twice, and I heard the thunder of their horses' hoofs, but I had little fear. I still held the girl's hand in mine, and she made no effort to draw it away. She was running with a firm, sure step, and, though her face was white and her eye excited, she seemed to retain both her courage and presence of mind.

The wood was not as far as I had calculated, and when our pursuers were such yards away we dashed into it at such headlong haste that I tripped over a vine and fell upon my nose, burying it in a pile of soft leaves, which saved it from harm. But I was up again, rejoicing at the accident, for in a wood interlaced with vines horses could make no progress.

"I hope you are not hurt?" asked Julia anxiously.

"Hurt? Not a bit of it!" I replied. "What a blessing these woods are! How dark it is here, and what a blessing that is too!"

In fact, the wood was our good luck and our best luck at that, for even we on foot found it difficult to make our way through it. Afar we could hear the British cursing in profusion and variety as they strove to force their horses through the dense bush.

"Hold my hand," I said to Julia, "for otherwise I might lose you in all this darkness and density."

But instead of waiting for her to take my hand, which she might not have done, I took hers, and, bidding her again to step lightly, I led the way, curving among the trees and bushes like a brook winding around the hills in search of a level channel. My object was to leave our pursuers at a loss concerning our course, and we soon ceased to hear their swearing or the struggles of their horses. I dropped into a walk, and of course the girl did likewise.

"I think we are safe now," I said.

"There is not one chance in a hundred to bring them across our path again. What a fine wood! What a glorious wood! There is no such wood as this in England. It grew here especially for our safety, Julia."

"It did grow up in time," she replied, "but now that you think us safe again you can call me Miss Howard and not Julia."

"That's true, and now that we are safe again I must ask you, Miss Howard, as an especial favor to me, to please quit holding my hand."

"I am not holding your hand, Mr. Marcel!" she replied indignantly. "It is you who are holding mine, but you shall not do so a moment longer."

She tried to jerk her hand away. I let her jerk three or four times, and then I added as an afterthought:

"It is very dark here, and there is still danger that we might become separated."

"I think I will let you hold it a little longer, but I shall endure it merely because it is a military necessity."

She gave her hand a most violent jerk, and it nearly slipped from me, but I renewed my grip in time.

"Simply a military necessity," I repeated, and, seeing that it was useless, she made no further effort to withdraw her hand. I could not see her face, the darkness being too great, and therefore had little opportunity to judge of her state of mind. We walked on in silence, winding here and there through the wood, with an occasional stop to listen, though we heard nothing but the common noises of a forest—the crackling rustle of dry leaves and twigs, the gentle swaying of some old tree as the wind rocked it and the soft swish of the bushes as they swung back into place after we had passed between.

CHAPTER VIII.

JULIA'S REVENGE.

We walked for nearly an hour and during the last three-quarters of it kept straight to the northwest, in which direction I thought Morgan, with his little army, lay, or rather marched. At last the bush began to grow thinner and the trees to stand farther apart. I inferred that we were approaching the end of the forest, and I was not sorry, as the traveling was hard, and I believed that we had lost our pursuers. Presently we came into the open, and I let the girl's hand drop.

"Which way are we going now?" she asked.

"Wait a moment," I said.

I put two fingers to my lips and blew between them a whistle, soft and long and penetrating.

"Why do you do that?" asked the girl in a frightened coming toward me.

"You will bring them upon us again."

"Wait," I repeated, and I blew the whistle a second time. We stood motionless for two minutes, and then I heard a faint crush, crush, as of approaching footsteps.

"They are coming!" cried the girl, seizing my arm. "Let us run into the wood again."

"Wait," I said for the third time.

The footsteps approached rapidly, and a figure, gigantic and formidable in the gray light, appeared through the trees. The girl cried aloud in a panic of terror and gripped my arm.

"Don't be alarmed, Julia, dear," I said. "See who it is!"

Old Put walked up to me, gave his glad, familiar whinny and rubbed his nose on my disengaged arm. Then he started back and his eyes flamed with wrath.

"Don't be angry, old comrade," I said. "It is true I wear a red coat, but it is only a disguise, a ruse, and I will get rid of it as soon as I can."

He wagged his head as a sign that my apology was sufficient and made no further protest. I slipped the bridle over his head, and the girl broke into a nervous laugh of relief.

"Did you think Old Put would desert a comrade?" I asked.

"Wait here just a moment," I continued. I led Old Put a little distance, and gathering up some dry leaves wiped the stains off his hoofs. Then I returned with him to her and told her to jump upon his back, but the horse shied away from her, showing aversion and anger.

"Never mind, Old Put," I said. "It is all right. She won't beat you again. She likes us both."

"It seems to me that you are rather insincere in your statements," she said.

"Get up," I said, and, giving her a hand, I assisted her to jump upon the back of Old Put, who had received my explanation with perfect confidence and assumed a protecting air toward her.

"And now once more for Morgan," I said.

"Which, of course, means Tarleton in the end," she said. "And I want to say, Mr. Marcel, that when the rebel army is taken I shall not forget the service that you have done me at a great risk to yourself. My father has influence with Colonel Tarleton, and I shall ask him to secure your good treatment while in captivity."

She spoke with quite an Englishness that is to say, quite a patronizing air.

"You are very kind," I said, "but Morgan has not been caught yet, has he, Old Put?"

Women think it their right to abuse a man and receive nothing but chivalry in return.

The old horse shook his head defiantly, and I felt encouraged. We had entered a good country for traveling and at last came into something that was meant evidently for a road, but it very much resembled a gully washed out by the rains. It led in the right direction, and I followed it, despite my persuasion that we were now in territory practically occupied by the British and were much more likely to meet them in the road than in the fields or forest. But I was tired of such difficult traveling, and, being extremely anxious to rejoin Morgan, I chose the course which promised the best speed.

Old Put carried the girl, and I walked on before, holding his bridle in my hand. I sank into a kind of walking doze—that is, I slept on my feet and with my feet moving. I was but dimly conscious, but I knew that I could put my trust in Old Put and that he would warn me if she made any attempt to escape. Whether the girl was asleep or wide awake I knew not, for my brain was too tired and dull then to tell me; but, looking back once, she seemed to be awake. She had slept well in the hut, while only a short nap had fallen to me.

We were in the darkest hours, those that stretch out their length between midnight and dawn, and I walked on over a dim and shadowy world. Sometimes I was not conscious that my feet touched anything but air. This queer feeling that I was walking on nothing lasted for more than half an hour, and then my half sleep took another phase. I came back to earth, and the red clay of the road took on for awhile the color of blood. The trees by the roadside raced past, rows of phantoms, holding out withered arms and making gestures that I did not understand. Once the dead face of Crowder rose up out of the road and confronted me, but when I said, "You were a murderer and worse and compelled me to kill you," and walked boldly at him he melted away like so much smoke, and I laughed aloud at such a poor kind of a ghost that would run at the first fire.

We were in the darkest hours, those that stretch out their length between midnight and dawn, and I walked on over a dim and shadowy world. Sometimes I was not conscious that my feet touched anything but air. This queer feeling that I was walking on nothing lasted for more than half an hour, and then my half sleep took another phase.

BIG DAY FOR Y. M. C. A.

Sunday, When Ministerial Delegates Are to Preach In Boston Pulpits.

MESSAGE FROM EDWARD THE VII

Was Followed by the Singing of a Great English Anthem, the Entire Audience Standing—Delegate Tried to Spring Darwinian Theory.

Boston, June 15.—To the ministerial delegates at the international Y. M. C. A. convention there came notices of assignments to Boston pulpits for Sunday, and that will be the day when the work of the Y. M. C. A. will be brought to the attention of the greatest number of people.

Among the section meetings the most striking incident occurred at that held in the First Baptist church, where Christianity and evolution came into clash through a paper read by Dr. Winfield S. Hall, of Chicago, on "Modern Tendencies in the Development of the Race." He discussed the racial development on the lines of the Darwinian theory. It caused discussion.

The chief interest in the general meeting was the attack on the business methods of the Y. M. C. A. by Rev. Dr. Canfield, of New York.

Last evening a message from King Edward VII was followed by the singing of "God Save the King," the entire audience standing.

NO UNITED STATES ENVOY.

Rumor From Rome of One Being Sent to Vatican Denied by State Department.

Washington, June 15.—A dispatch from Rome intimates that Cardinal Rampolla may take advantage of the ecclesiastical situation in the Philippines to compel President McKinley to send a diplomatic envoy to the Vatican. At the state department this is said to be impossible, as this nation does not recognize any ecclesiastical authority.

A serious objection to sending an envoy to the pope is that it would be an expression of opinion as to the claim of temporal power on the part of the head of the Catholic church. The claim has been controverted by Italy, and any action by the United States tending to recognize such claim would doubtless lead to the severance of diplomatic relations. This point is understood by the leaders of the church in America, such as Cardinal Gibbons, who explained the matter during his visit to Rome.

MRS. WALTERS ELECTED.

Missionary Union of Reformed Presbyterian Church Selects Officers.

Cincinnati, June 15.—At a session of the general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church addresses were delivered by Thomas Biggerstaff, of Pittsburgh, on Sabbath observance, and by Dr. David Steele, as the representatives of the western section of the alliance of the reform churches. An enthusiastic reception was tendered Rev. J. Sanderson, of Cedarville, O., as a fraternal delegate from a branch of the Reformed Presbyterian church. The response by Moderator Brownell joined in the hope that all the Reformed Presbyterians would become united again.

At the meeting of the Women's Missionary union Miss Mary Murdoch, Cedarville, O., was elected president; first vice president, Mrs. Thomas Walters, Pittsburgh; treasurer, Mrs. William Black, Pittsburgh.

BRITISH CENSUS STATISTICS.

Inhabitants of Five Cities Outside of London—Some Other Figures.

London, June 15.—A preliminary census volume gives the population of the five largest cities of England, exclusive of London, as follows:

Liverpool, 584,947; Manchester, 513,969; Birmingham, 522,182; Leeds, 28,953; Sheffield, 380,717.

The total number of males in England and Wales is 15,721,728; of females, 16,804,347, men serving abroad being excluded.

Seventy-seven per cent of the total population is in the cities and 23 per cent is in rural districts, as against 35 and 25 per cent respectively in 1891.

MAY ACCEPT BRITISH PROPOSAL.

Some Minor Indemnity Propositions Made by Rockhill.

Paris, June 15.—Dispatches received here from Pekin said the French ministers were considering fresh propositions from Mr. Rockhill affecting the Chinese concessions looking to the payment of the indemnity. The propositions concern minor matters and may or may not be accepted, but until they are disposed of the ministers will not pronounce a decision as to the manner in which China is to pay the powers, though it is virtually settled that the British proposal will be accepted.

RURAL ROUTES IN OHIO.

New Postal Service to Be Established in Country Places.

Washington, June 15.—Additional rural free delivery service will be established July 1 in Ohio as follows: W. R. Reed; Springfield, Clark county, two carriers; E. T. Cummings and G. Bird, Postoffices at Eagle City and Lawrenceburg, Lawrenceburg, and the postoffice at Wiseman.

Two carriers, C. W. Spragg and Drs. J. H. Miller and C. W. Spragg have been appointed pension examiners at Waynesburg, Pa.

AN ELECTRIC-CHARGED FENCE.

Coal Company So Protects Non-Unionists, Though Strikers Are Peaceful—More Families Evicted.

Williamsport, June 15.—Notwithstanding the assurance from the State Line and Sullivan Coal company that there would be no more evictions of miners' families at Bernice, Sullivan county, two more families were forced to move out of company houses on Wednesday.

The company has resorted to a vigorous method to prevent the men from reaching the pump station where the non-union workmen are employed. A seven-strand barb wire fence has been built about the pump house and dynamo plant, and these wires are heavily charged with electricity. On the fence are placed "danger" signals notifying the public to keep away from the fence. The fence is about seven feet high.

In addition to the fence several deputy sheriffs are employed. Sheriff Osler tried to get deputies from LaPorte, but in this was unsuccessful. He obtained two at Sonestown.

The miners are peaceable, not the slightest indication of violence being shown. It is feared that evictions will become general, however, for there are at least 120 families who are yet occupying company houses.

BIDDLE WAS FOUND GUILTY.

First Degree Verdict Returned by Jury in Kahney Case—Prisoner Much Affected.

Pittsburg, June 15.—John D. Biddle was found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing Grocer Thomas Donnelly Kahney, of Mt. Washington, April 12 last.

After the usual preliminaries, Foreman Archibald Ritchie pulled the indictment from a pocket and read: "We find the defendant, John Biddle, alias John Wright, guilty of murder in the first degree."

The awful words struck Biddle with terrible force and caused him to nearly fall into his chair, but he regained his composure with one strong effort and stood until the clerk recorded the verdict. Without any indication from any officer Biddle fell right back into his chair. He kept his head erect, however, in the strenuous effort to maintain composure.

Later Crier Patterson took his arm and led him back of the bench toward the door leading to the bridge of sighs. The jury took three ballots.

A WOMAN ROBBED.

Thieves Then Fired House and Tried to Prevent Her Escape. Neighbors Armed.

Pittsburg, June 15.—Four men shadowed Mrs. Sadie Fowler, of Covendale street, Thirty-fifth ward, for about five hours Thursday, and about 2 o'clock Friday morning beat her into insensibility, robbed her and burned down her home. When she tried to escape from the burning building the men held the doors, but the arrival of neighbors saved her from being suffocated. The robbers escaped.

The house was burned to the ground. The loss is placed at $3,000, while Mrs. Fowler's loss from the fire will be in the neighborhood of $600. There was no insurance on the furniture, but S. C. Cover, owner of the house, had it fully insured.

Mrs. Fowler is a widow, and has a large interest in the oil wells in this state and in West Virginia. She told the story of the robbery to the neighbors. She was not injured by the fire, but the blow on her head troubled her. Mrs. Fowler is 35 years of age and is a professional nurse.

The money the robbers secured amounted to $52.

BLONDIN MET NO WOMAN.

Expressman Found Who Moved Suspected Wife Murderer's Trunk.

Boston, June 15.—The belief that Mrs. Margaret Blondin was murdered in her room at 43 Green street on the evening of April 27 is gaining ground in police circles in this city. The expressman who took the Blondin trunk away from the boarding house on Green street was William Dean. Dean remembered the incident, as it was raining hard and as the man who engaged him rode with him.

Dean said he saw a check placed on the trunk before he left. Blondin had a ticket for Montreal. Blondin met no woman at the station. The baggage checker at the station corroborates Dean's story.

Special Officer Chapman also found the expressman who called for Blondin's trunk at the latter's lodgings on Howard street last Wednesday. He took it to the South Union station. The expressman told the police official that he checked the trunk to Springfield.

DR. PURINTON ELECTED.

Recalled to Act as President of West Virginia University.

Morgantown, W. Va., June 15.—Daniel Boardman Purinton, Ph. D., now president of the Dennison university, of Granville, O., was elected president of the West Virginia university. He was chosen by unanimous vote of the board of regents.

A salary of $4,000 a year was voted Dr. Purinton. He was at one time acting president.

Christian Nilsson's Illness.

Copenhagen, June 15.—Christian Nilsson is not, as reported by a news agency, seriously ill at Gothenburg, Sweden, but is in Paris, to which city the great singer recently returned from Mentone. She is not seriously ill, but suffers from rheumatism and the effects of influenza.

Russian Official Attacked.

Petersburg, June 15.—An obscure official of the ministry of the interior was attacked, but not injured, by a man who has not been identified.

The incident gave rise to a report that a Nihilist outrage had been committed.

The Bigness of the Ocean.

Some people gratefully reflect that we owe the clouds and the tides and the winds to the "Mother and Maker of men," but these are less numerous than the folks who "would like to know" what we should do for soles and cod and mackerel if there were no ocean. Yet think only how big it is! If you divide the whole globe's area into 11 parts, the sea covers eight of those, with an average depth of 2,000 fathoms. Try to imagine 12,000 feet of solid, perpendicular sea water lying upon eight-elevenths of the entire planet!

A patient mathematician has been at the pains to inform us that this bulk of brine would weigh one and a half million million millions of tons. For the most part this vast body of water—thus set down in figures as 1,500,000,000,000,000 tons—is of the same composition everywhere, and as everybody knows, carries great quantities of ocean salt.

But that same salt is itself singularly complex. Not only are there in it chlorides and sulphates of sodium, potash, magnesium and lime, which are familiar to many, but it contains also silica, boron, bromide, iodine, fluorine acid and the oxides of nickel, cobalt, manganese, zinc, silver, lead, copper, aluminium, barium and strontium. Arsenic and gold are also found in it, along with those rare metals lithium, rubidium and caesium.—London Telegraph.
